What are the Secrets of our Success in '88?

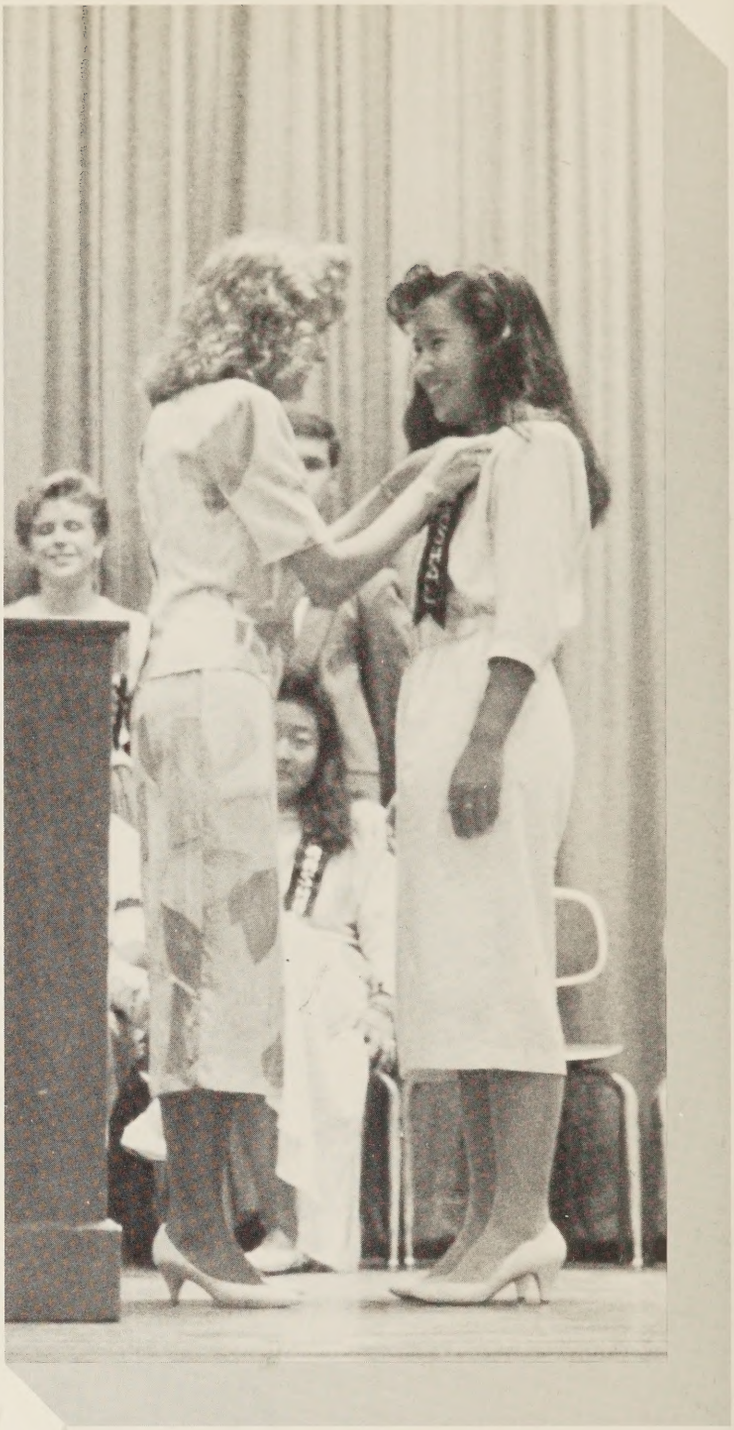
Success. It's more than fancy cars, expensive homes and fat bank accounts; in fact, these things hardly scratch the surface of its true meaning. At Churchland High School, each student is challenged to develop his unique understanding of success, and collectively we come up with some exciting discoveries.

Success, we find, is becoming steadily independent of others, such as parents and teachers, yet becoming strong enough to realize you can't stand alone.

Success is having the peace of mind that comes from being your own person rather than a carbon copy.

Success is the difference between memorizing and learning, getting by and excelling, and living.

In time, we discover that the secrets for success lie within ourselves and CHS shows us how to tap into these inner wonders.....



Success is being named a Marshal. Here Kim Hall pins Michelle Fontanilla as a new marshal for the 1987-88 school year. A student must have a 3.0 or better average and must be exemplary in character and leadership to be selected as a Marshal.

Winning on Tidewater Challenge. Tidewater Challenge members Ted Jeffcoate, Cathi Cantieri, Andy Ryder, and Shawn Higginbotham were successful as they defeated York in round one. Winning the float competition. Jessica Canos and Ronnie Culpepper decorate the seniors' third first place float.

Dressing for success. Sporting a creme colored sweater and skirt is Vera Reed.

The first. Jimmy English, here being congratulted by Ms. Elizabeth Foor, was selected the first Powder Puff King.

Faculty participation. Faculty input enabled many of the activities at the school to run as smoothly as they did. Here SCA sponsor Mrs. Lucy Lassiter and yearbook sponsor Mr. Marvin Fanny supervise halftime activities at homecoming as representatives Adrienne Murden, J. D. Underwood, and Leigh Bender await their time in the spotlight.

... We learn responsibility by getting docked ten points a day for late work.

We become self-disciplined as we decide to study instead of watching The Cosby Show.

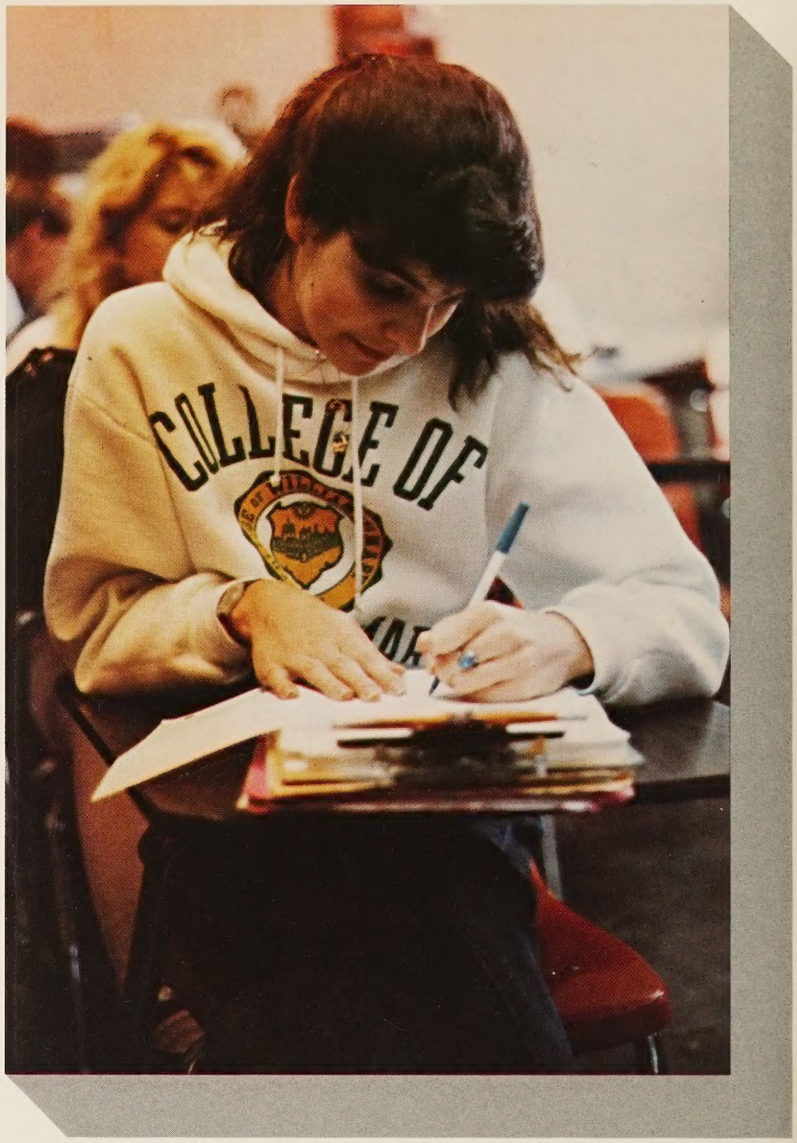
Our curiousity is aroused as we learn to challenge the standards instead of merely accepting them as the norm.

And we feel a thirsting desire to reach our fullest potential by going that extra mile for the assignments we know won't be graded on.

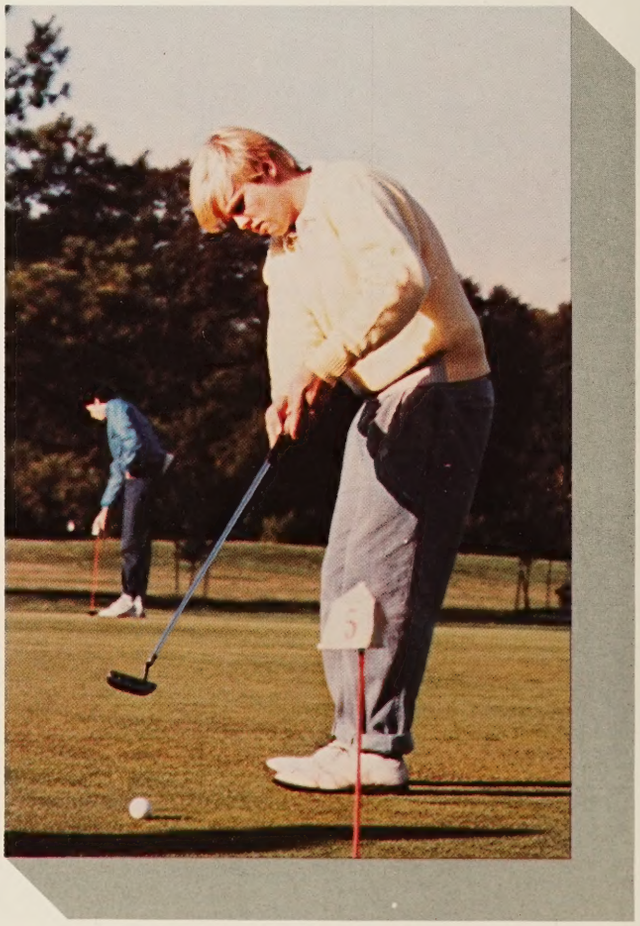
Yes, we have reached an authentic level on the ladder of success, but just as there are many rungs below us, so there are above us. CHS prepares us to reach those higher rungs - not in fear, but in confident anticipation.

We dream, we work, we stumble, we try again. We scream with frustration, we help each other, we grow. We laugh and cry and sing and ... we succeed.

Dana Powell



Success is ... W & M. Senior Jennifer Meekins was accepted on early decision at William and Mary, the college of her choice.



Success... friends. Friends Sunci Driedric and Lisa Stanley share a laugh during their lunchtime.

Success is winning district honors. Golfer Shawn James concentrates as he takes a putt during district play.

On top of the world. Sophomore homecoming representatives Macy Hale and Tony Mason march down the field, indeed feeling on top of the world.

STUDENT LIFE

What is student life? September to June. Monday through Friday. 7:45 AM to 2:15 PM.

If this question were worth ten points, this answer might receive five points. Academics are only half of student life.

The other half is made up of school activities and outside interests and hobbies. School activities include pep rallies, athletic games, dances, fundraisers, homecoming, the Mr. and Miss Churchland pageant, and powder puff. Interests and hobbies may vary from surfing to talking on the phone.

Peggy Thomas

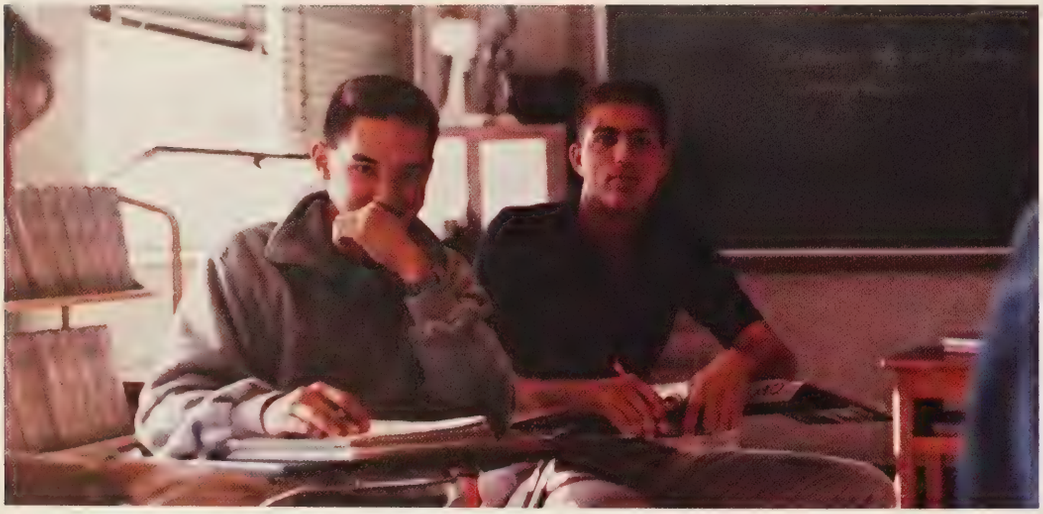
Fries, anyone? Freshman Andy Shea reaches desperately for some ketchup and salt.
"Would you like your ears, pierced?" Senior Christine Popiolek aids a customer at the jewelry counter at Roses, where she works part-time.

A Typical Day?

What is a typical day at CHS?

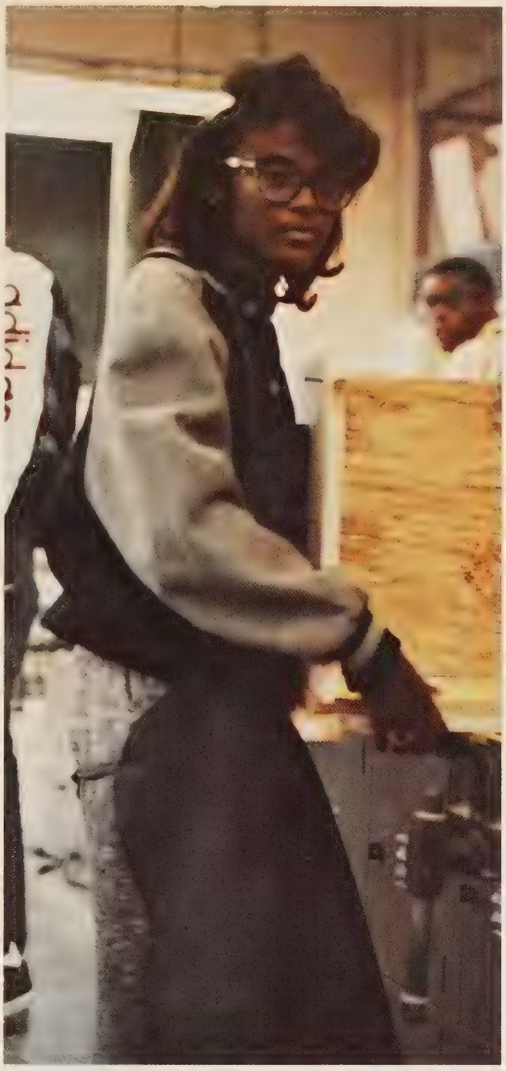
6:45. Losing money in the vending machine. Waiting for the trafiic light on High Street to turn green. Scraping ice from your car windows. Weekend vandalism. Pizza every Monday and Friday. 10 cent cost for leaving a book in Room 116. Public displays of affection. Smoking in the bathrooms. Running down the hall and missing the tardy bell by a second. Yearby for Mayor. Fender benders in the parking lot. Doing everything but journalism in journalism class. Skipping class. Miss Murphy's detention line outside the auditorium. Balloons and flowers for your birthday. Sleeping in class — anybody's class. 2:15.

Taking a test. Keeping busy during an English 12 Honors vocabulary quiz is Matthew Garth.



Group discussions. Working to solve Mr. Audet's questions on the Elizabethan Era are Glenn Samick and Karl Teemant.
Um. Um. Good. Orange juice and biscuits served as a breakfast mainstay for senior Natalie Riddick.

Future plans? Could this be a new career for senior Mikaela Morris, who shows her skill in woodcrafting in wood technology class.



"Ew...Yuck!" Showing her skill and ability to crack an egg, Berry Barrick prepares to bake a cake in independent living class. Joey Duncan supervises the operation.
Making the grade. Seniors Davida Alexander and Jackie Terrell show their hard work in Mr. O. L. Paige's English class.

Zzzzz. Sleeping in Algerba II class again, Greg Piland gives his impresssions of typical life.
Don't get out of that chair! Senior David Derr prepares to get a headstart out of Mr. Fanny's sixth period English class.

"Are we late?" Rushing into school and trying to beat the bell are Jessica Boothe and Sun Ah Lee.

An Evening in Paris

The rain had drizzled constantly all night. Cold drops traced a path from the girl's neck down her bear back, making her shiver. Quickly she rushed to the door with her date leading the way. Once inside, the bad weather was immediately forgotten. The festivities of the 1987 Churchland High School Junior-Senior Prom were the only things on anyone's mind.

Gai Paris was the theme of the prom, and everything was decorated beautifully. From the Eiffel Tower to the paintings to the pink azaleas, the setting was a complete Parisian scene. The students, as well as a few teachers and parents, spent an enjoyable evening dancing, eating and socializing.

However, as midnight drew near, couples began to filter out, back into the cold, rainy night. Their thoughts were not on the weather, but rather on the good memories of the evening.

Monica Perry

Welcome. Class salutatorian Felicidad Calica welcomes friends and guests to the 1987 Commencement exercises.

One Enchanted Evening. Accompanied by her escort Ben Creamer, Kim Hall makes the most of a wonderful evening. To cap the evening off Kim and Ben headed for the beach.

Check it Out. Enjoying the atmosphere of Gai Paris and her date's company is Mikaela Morris as she checks out the other dancers and what they're wearing for the evening.
And how many is this? Dancing to the beat are Mrs. Elizabeth Duke and Mr. Robert Moore. Collectively, they've missed less than five proms in the years they've been teaching at CHS. And how many years is that? Only they know.

Bored? It seems so for Kent Saunders as he dances with his date Laurie Bond. He and Laurie enjoyed a breakfast at the Underwoods' home following the prom.
Thanks. As a token of their appreciation, the class of 1987, represented by class treasurer Theresa Slezak, presented guidance counselor Mrs. India Wheeler a ceramic breadbasket.

Don't you just love chemistry? Scholar Michelle Sunnucks shows her enthusiasm for chemistry as she dresses for dork day.
What a nerd! Complete with taped glasses and wide tie, Sam Mills gets into the mood of dork day.

Is that Molly Ringwald? Junior Amy Yearby has the spirit of tinseltown on Hollywood day.
Hail, Caesar and Mr. Robert Moore!Dressed for crazy day - Roman style - are Mark Tuggle, Chad Dennis, Stephanie James, Amy Morris, Lori Cherry, Monica Perry, Jon Prindle, Carol Fosnocht, Debbie Canada, Margaret Facenda, Natalie Riddick, Karen Moser, Gary Bennett, Leslie White, Angela Thornton, Jennifer Meekins, Susan Crandall, and Jennifer Lindsay.

Marilyn Monroe visits CHS

A tall, blonde figure entered the room. All eyes were entranced upon this vision of loveliness. From her high heels to her diamonds, Jason Farwell had put Marilyn Monroe to shame. This stunning blonde had captured the attention of everyone crossing her path.

Marilyn Monroe just began the list of celebrities. The halls were filled with the faces of the silver screen. Hollywood day was just one of the days that the Trucker spirit was at its height.

On dork day Mike Seay was ready for the deepest flood with his highwaters; on international day, Chad Dennis could have passed for a true Scotsman.

From the glamour of Marilyn Monroe to the taped glasses of the typical dork, the participation in spirit week was outstanding.

The senior class accounted for a large number of participants, but those underclassmen gave them a run for their money. The count was close, but the class of '88 came shining through.

Overall, the homecoming activities led to a fantastic homecoming evening. The night was a perfect climax for revealing the secret of our success.

Beth Atkinson

Poised for Hollywood. Marilyn Monroe, or Jason Farwell as we know him, dressed to impress on Hollywood day.
Want to buy some cookies? Junior Rachel Rivera has the girl scout spirit on crazy day.

The Fritz. Sporting the greaser look, reminiscent of the fifties, is Randy Fritz, who completed the outfit with a leather jacket and a white t-shirt.

Norcom arrivals. Checking in after two class periods at Norcom, which became a center for technology and the arts, are Todd Cologgi and Amy Ewing.
A new CHS? Ceiling problems like the one being corrected by Mr. Mike Patillo and Mrs. India Wheeler were a regular happening. Building conditions and the increased student body were just two of the reasons cited for building a new high school in Churchland.
The Xerox lady. On a lighter note, the school received a new Xerox machine which collated, stapled, and even printed on two sides of the paper at the same time. Here Mrs. Carole Platt shows how simple the new machine is to operate as she prepares her art midterm examination.

Changes at CHS? What Changes?

In September of 1986 drastic changes were introduced into the instructional and discipline procedures of Portsmouth Public Schools. The grading system was changed, and students were allowed to retest. Mastery Learning was put into effect. Reality Therapy down played the role of the teacher and the administrators as authority figures and put the thrust of discipline in the students' hands. By April of 1987 teachers, adminstrators, parents, and certain members of the School Board were up in arms over the new policies implemented by Superintendent Rondle Edawrds. This frustration soon led to the resignations of Dr. Edwards, Dr. Robert Mitchell, and Mrs. Carol Barber.

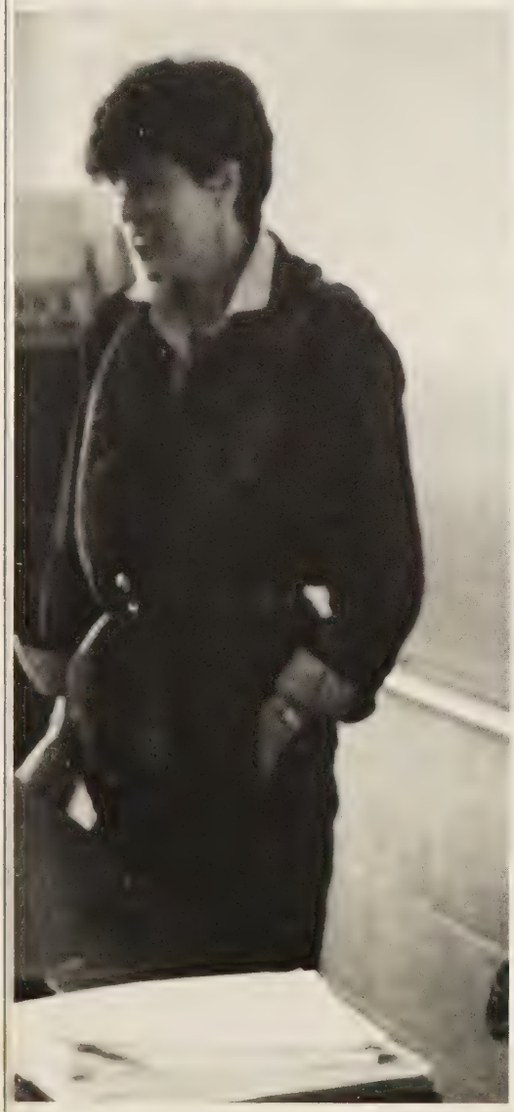
In July of 1987, many school board members made motions that led to the removal of Mastery Learning and Reality Therapy. The school system voted to return to a more traditional discipline policy and to give teachers more flexibility concerning what and how they teach. The textbook became the principal teaching tool and the report cards returned to the traditional A - F system that allows for a better, more consistent evaluation of the student's performance.

"I'm very glad Mastery Learning was done away with because it was ridiculous," noted Mrs. Elizabeth Duke, mathematics department head. When questioned about whether she could see any differences in the way discipline problems are handled this year as opposed to last year, Mrs. Duke noted, "Absolutely. The teachers can handle the children now instead of the children taking their actions in their own hands."

Even students like Shelton Twine found the system frustrating. "Reality Therapy was not working because discipline was out of hand," noted Twine.

Ross Cherry

Back to the basic approach. Junior Bert Scott completes a journalism test where teacher Mr. Marvin Fanny offers no retests, a principal component of Mastery Learning. Some teachers, however, still used the retest as a viable alternative in the classroom.



Governor's School. Several students from Churchland, as well as from other Portsmouth and Hampton Roads high schools attended the Governor's School for the Arts. Churchland's Felicia Flores was enrolled in the performing arts program which was held at Old Dominion University. She like other students left after fourth or fifth period to attend the Governor's School.
A new face. Senior government teacher Mrs. Phyllis Wermeister was just one of the many new staff members at Churchland. Joining Mrs. Wermeister were Mrs. Janet Fedei, Mr. James Davis, Ms. Lori Passios, Mrs. Catherine Winslow, Mrs. Joanne Funk, Mrs. Julia Thompson, Ms. Jule Gibson, Mrs. Barbara Taber, Mrs. Marcella McNeil, Mrs. Alice Hundley, Mr. Mark Didawick, Ms. Zelene Battle, and Mr. Michael Gilpatrick.

You've got that look! With her petite figure senior Lanie Samonte could wear almost anything. From straight black skirts to big, bright sweaters, Lanie creates an air of success.

The Material World

Rebel without a cause.

This saying is one of many ideas which may come to mind when seeing someone dressed to stand out above the crowd. There are many names which one can call these individualistic people; some are referred to as punk rockers, others grits, still others new wave.

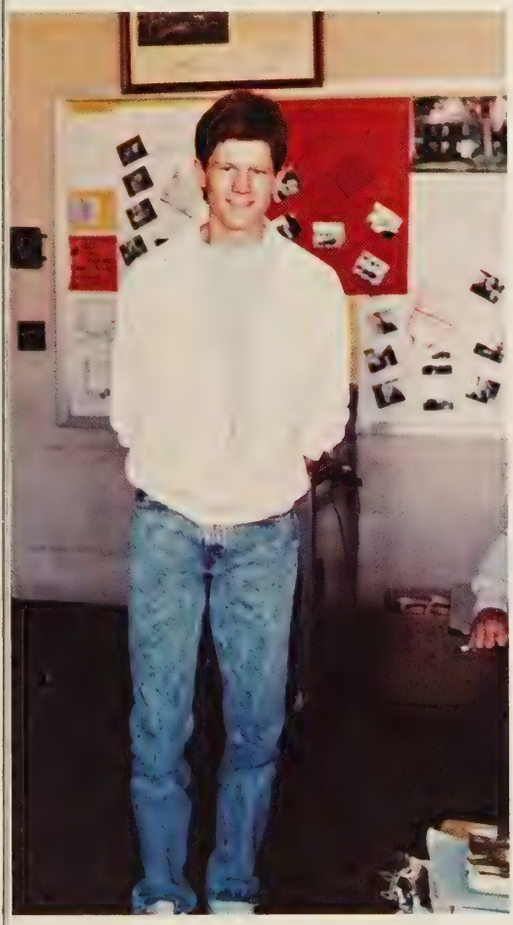
A familiar style which some of the materialistic people may wear is the denim look - jean jackets, jeans, jean skirts, all which can come in light, dark, or stone washed styles. Typical attire may include high top Converse tennis shoes, jeans, a t-shirt of some rock group, like Metallica or Iron Maiden, or a flannel shirt, and a jean jacket covered with patches of their favorite group.

The so-called punk rockers seem to make everything from scratch. New wave may also be considered in their line. Typical apparel includes black high top boots, colorful socks, usually matching the shirt, tight or parachute pants, faded, loose shirts of any variety and bulky jewelry, including large earrings. Completing the look is the haircut, which ranges from long and puffy to short, but extremely spiky, often colored various shades. Usually for a finishing touch some type of jacket, maybe a trench coat or a homemade jean jacket, will be worn. This style includes the mismatching of clothes.

Criticize the people. NO. Because these creative people symbolize individulaity and create their own aura of success.

Kay Mullins

Hey, cutie, can I take your picture? With his bright, yellow tie and cardigan sweater, Mike O'Connor dresses for success.



Stand by me. Modeling the old standby - jeans, t-shirts, and tennis shoes - is Neal Wellons.

The Brad? With shaved lines above each ear, sophomore Brad Horton follows the style of professional football player Brian Bosworth and sets the pace for other students at CHS.

"Just take the picture!" Mariella Yawn waits patiently for her picture to be taken. She displays a popular style with her baggy sweater, big earrings, and tiny, over-the-shoulder purse.

Hold that pose. Modeling a popular accessory this year, the multi-colored scarf, which was worn in a variety of ways and places, is Sandra York.
Myself. Senior Chuck Waddell sports the casual look and the popular wedge haircut.
Back in black... and with a splash of color is Heather Gilstrap, who styles in her black pants accented with paisleys.

The Jamaican look. Sporting dreds, a popular hairstyle among the skaters, is Barry LaPlante. The look is achieved by putting any stick substance around - mouse, gel, toothpaste, soap - in the hair. The unfortunate thing about the look was when one decides to get rid of it. Often a person must shave the head to buzz cut to get rid of the dreds.
Looking good. Sporting the muted look in sweaters in Tyronne Wright. He often completed the look with pleated pants and dress shoes. Tyronne was also noted for his stylish three piece suits.

An Indiana fan. College sweatshirts, like the one worn by Jonathan Steinberg, were a mainstay for many, especially seniors.

The Casual Looks

Styles change each year. Two of the most prominent this year are the surfing and skating inspired looks.

Skaters are easily picked out from a crowd by their baggy pants or long shorts and hightops, along with a t-shirt designed with a familiar skating logo, shop, or contest they have been involved in.

Surfers are also distinctive. They can be spotted by their t-shirts or sweatshirts by Rip Curl or Instinct, by their jeans and sweatshirts, and occasionally by a sweater or buttoned down collar shirt. Shoes come in a variety of styles for the surfer including deck shoes, tennis shoes, and hightops.

At any rate, people adopting the surfer or skater look opted for comfort and casualness.

Jenny Forehand

The Flat top. Reviving a haircut popular during the fifties and early sixties, Tommy Neal models the 80's version of the flattop. The cut included short, very short sides, a close cropped back, and hair cut to form a flat surface across the top of the head. The hair on top was kept in place by mousse, gel and the like.

The Female look. Bangs brushed to one side and a blunt cut in the back, as worn by Amy Hopkins, were typical of the female hairstyles.

The Winter look. Turtlenecks worn under sweaters and buttoned collar shirts served as the standard for winter wear. Here Leigh Bender wears a navy blue turtleneck under a light blue cotton shirt.

You Got that Look!

"U got that look!" Prince's source of inspiration could only have come from CHS, known for its "anything goes" attitude towards fashion. So the fact that "bops" seemed to be the forerunners of fashion this year is a bit surprising.

Bops - you know the type - female worshippers of Forenza, Esprit, and the bobbed haircut huddle together in their very select group, critiquing the varied array of fashion.

Of course, bops aren't the only ones who have a conforming streak. And in all truthfulness, they can somewhat afford to be alike without being redundant. What with bright stretch pants, sweaters in all shapes and sizes, and eye-catching miniskirts, all splashed with bold colors, bops can have the safety that lies in conformity without completely sacrificing their own individual tastes.

And perhaps the sacrifice is worth it to the bops. After all, most of them are popular, enjoy an active school and social life, and, more importantly, feel good about themselves. Nice trade off, isn't it?

Jamie Samuels

Acid man. No, he's not a drug addict. He's Billy Kearney showing off the more familiar acid washed look in denim.

The psychedelic look. The popular tie dye look, modeled by Jay Levin, is a real eye catcher and a throwback to the 60's.

"Braids are beautiful." says Drusilla Chisholm. Braids made a surprising, yet welcome, comeback this year.

Things are great in '88. The year would not be complete without the overwhelming number of senior sweatshirts, such as the one modeled here by Stephanie Allen.

Who's afraid of snakebites? Not Charlie Andrews who sports those slithering snake skin boots. Boots of all kinds made a comeback this year.

Good morning to you. Stopping to relax before journalism class, Jenny Forehand shows off the popular look of deck shoes, rolled up pants, and an oversized shirt.

Clean cut. Always the epitome of fashion, Jimmy English models a short, layered haircut and a polo shirt topped with a crewneck sweater.

What's next, man? Hanging out after school, Donnie Boone shows off the layered t-shirt look and the surprising, yet strong, influence of plaid pants on guys.

Now ear this. Earrings on guys reached the mainstream of the student population. Here Mark Guyot models a small gold ball. Styles ranged from the small balls to long, dangling emblems.

Black on black. All black outfits were widespread. Here Jeff Kadans models a black jacket, pants, and shoes.

Homecoming '87 goes Around the World

What is homecoming? Homecoming is many things. It's a big event within the school, a special football game and a gathering of old friends.

In school there is excitement in the air all week long. Each day is special and something different. There's dork day, Hollywood day, and spirit day, all which show the students' spirit.

And then Friday comes. Friday's the big day everyone has been waiting for, the night of the big game. Everyone is excited, not just because of the game, but because there is a new homecoming court.

Homecoming is also a type of coming home. Old friends and former graduates come home to their high school and see the achievements of the new class and of friends. They also get to see a new court and even more than that - a new homecoming queen.

All of this, along with high spirits, is what really makes homecoming.

Leigh Bender

Sitting pretty. The 1987 Homecoming Queen, Adrienne Murden, and her escort, J. D. Underwood, take a ride on the t-tops of a red IROC-Z.

"Off with her head!" These were the words running through Michelle Bundy's head at the thought of her tripping under the swords of the Color Guard. However, Van Younkins, her escort, felt he had a grip on the situation.

Do you see what I see? A sophomore, Danielle Dennis, on the senior float. She joined seniors Tim Jones, Kenneth Talton, Stephanie James, Monica Perry, Lanie Samonte, Christen Mank, and Amy Morris for their victory ride around the track.

1987 Homecoming Court

Senior Representatives. Jessica Canos, Tommy Neal, Adrienne Murden, J. D. Underwood, Beth Atkinson, Kent Saunders, Mary Beth Honaker, Phillip Thomason, Michelle Bundy, Van Younkins, Joline Warren, Leigh Bender, Kim Hall, Randy Fritz.

First Place Remains with '88

Homecoming approaches and a float must be constructed for the homecoming parade. The theme, Around the World, is established and several seniors sit in Debbie Canada's backyard pondering over what to do this year. Someone says, "No spray paint and tissue paper, please!" Everyone recalls last year when a large portion of the float was ruined because of this combination. They remember the culprit and begin to snicker and laugh. Then a lightbulb appears and the idea of a visit to four corners of the world by sea is pictured. Then someone quickly drew up the design and the seniors immediately went to work. After several weeks of hard and constant work, the float is completed. As it pulled up at the parade, a few things were missing. Shock and hysteria came over all the seniors who had missed homework and hours of sleeps to build this masterpiece. They jumped in the truck and retraced their tracks, finding palm tree branches and a Christmas tree along the way. The float then proceeded toward the stadium.

During halftime the float made one more trip. Every senior that could squeeze his body on the truck piled on for one final ride. Finally, the announcement came, "First place goes to the class of '88." The seniors had won first place for the third year.

Peggy Thomas

"Duh!" Dressed for success, Debbie Canada shows off her new, sizzling nerd outfit. Once around the track. Whitney Walker and escort Harry Edelstein take the ceremonial trip around the track. The car was donated by Bill Lewis Chevrolet.

Two freshmen representatives. Freshmen Tiffany Peacock and Brad Skeeter smile for the camera. This year students voted to have two freshmen and sophomore representatives.

Give me another red one. Leslie White and Melissa Cales pin flowers on the pagoda of the Far East. You're waking too slow. Juniors Leslie McGlynn and Steve Forrest take the long walk down the aisle during the assembly.

Sophomore and Freshmen Representatives. Sophomores Macy Hale and Tony Mason, Freshmen Tiffany Peacock and Brad Skeeter, Freshmen Ashlin Murden and Greg Canada, Sophomores Kristi Krumm and Donnie Boone.

Murden and Walker reign in '87

Nervousness. Anxiety. Anticipation.

All of these were felt homecoming night. As we got up and walked down the stairs, I felt her arm tighten around mine. I knew she was nervous.

After we were on the track, I could feel her quiver and shake. Slowly, we moved to the point where her name would be called as a potential queen.

"Which way do we turn?" I heard her whisper right before her name was called. Then it came, the name. It was do or die. We walked out, faced the crowd, and then walked out onto the field under the raised swords.

It was now that the anticipation was the greatest. They called the name of the Maid of Honor - Whitney Walker. Then it was time, the moment we were all waiting for. They announced the queen - Adrienne Murden. Relaxation flowed through both of us as did our happiness for the new queen.

As we moved off the field, we still felt the honor of being on the homecoming court.

Leigh Bender

Boy Debbie. "Do you really want to hurt me?" asks Boy George lookalike Debbie Canada. Who me? Reigning supreme as the polyester queen on dork day was Monica Perry as she sported a lovely alligator bag.

Peace. Indian brave Glenn Samick tries to keep peaceful relations with fellow students on crazy day.
Hey, dude! A relaxed Brad Skeeter escorts his nervous cousin Tiffany Peacock during the halftime festivities of homecoming.

This is so boring! Chemistry seems to bring out the nerd in Wendy Wharam during dork day.
Please be careful. Juniors Michelle Fontanilla and Paul Ridenour quickly, but carefully, make their way down the field during the homecoming ceremonies, hoping the swordbearers don't get tired.

Is it 7:30 already? Junior Kay Mullins displays her desire for comfort during crazy day.

Ida Duanything wins title

Ida Duanything, Jimmy English, as he is more commonly known, has indeed done just about everything, the most recent being crowned the first Powder Puff King in CHS history.

"I feel like a cool breath from an angel's breast is caressing my body with ecstasy!" Jimmy exclaimed in a falsetto voice.

His male of honor, Freeda Anyone, also known as Mike Keasey, said that although he had no idea he would win, he wanted to point that physical attractiveness wasn't the sole reason he and Jimmy earned their titles. Intelligence, charm, wit, guts, and a wild imagination got them where they are today.

"There's more to me than my figure," Mike concluded, geturing to the bulge in his two sizes too small sweater.

If appearance were a major factor in selecting the Powder Puff Court, these guys definitely had the edge over other contestants. Along with Mike Keasey's form fitting blue sweater, he modeled a pair of white long johns, which nicely complimented his flowing green polyester skirt. Jimmy English sported the sassy look with a white v-neck sweater and a sizzling pink mini-skirt that showed off his black Reeboks. A brown curly wig and die-hard makeup completed his attire.

Obviously, Mike and Jimmy have what it takes to be respectively Male of Honor and Powder Puff King 1987. But what about the king's successor? "Be sweet, be good, be easy," Jimmy advised.

And with that, he flashed a knowing grin as if he had been all three.

Dana Powell

The Winner is ... Reporter Dana Powell inerviews newly crowned king Jimmy English as Powder Puff court contestant Tommy Neal looks on.

Marching on to victory. Junior powder puff players pose for the traditional pre-game picture. The players were coached by Brian Casper, Ed Skrobiszewski, and William Wong.

Who? Me? Junior coach Brian Casper reacts to a charge of illegal activity on the field. Controversy, as always, surrounded the game, especially the issue of tying flags.

Sporting the look. Posing for the camera are the junior class cheerleaders, who were sponsored by Ms. Zelene Battle.

One final time. Coached by Greg Piland, John Ackiss, and Mike Carroll, the class of '88 made its final appearance in a powder puff game.
Pretty, please. Posing for the team shot are Ronnie Culpepper, Mike O'Connor, Jimmy English, Matthew Garth, Ted Jeffcoate, Shawn Higginbotham, Mark Tuggle, Glenn Samick, Steve Keefer, Kent Saunders, Phillip Thomason, Randy Fritz, Trey Hanbury, Leigh Bender, and Tommy Neal.
Congratulations. Senior class sponsor Ms. Elizabeth Foor congratultes the first Powder Puff Male of Honor Mike Keasey, who was escorted by Meredith Parker.

Up, up, and away. Junior cheerleaders astound the crowd with a two-tier mount.
"What do I do now?" Senior powder puff player Stephanie Meagher waits for further instructions from the coach.

Come on throw the ball. Junior Paul Ridenour enjoys a friendly, Saturday morning game of football at Churchland Elementary.

"That's it!" Astonished that someone got the clue, junior Shawn Harris had a good time at Leslie White's birthday party.

After 2:15

Life at Churchland High School involves more than just books and studies. To avoid going totally crazy, everyone needs to take time out to relax and do something he enjoys.

Some enjoy sitting quietly and reading a mystery novel, while others prefer the party scene. Some students would rather go out to dinner or catch a good movie.

There are also those people who enjoy the outdoors. Surfing is a favorite sport for some students who can always be found at Virginia Beach or Nags Head. Skateboarding, biking, and running are other favorite outdoor sports. For the true nature lover, the senior class sponsored an overnight hayride with a marshmallow roast and ghost stories by the campfire.

Other students belong to organizations outside school, such as sororities, church groups, and even musical bands. One other favorite weekend pastime is the infamous college visit. Not only do students go to see the various campuses, but also to see the college life.

However, no matter what the activity, everyone needs a pastime to avoid boredom and schoolwork. So whether partying, dating, visiting, or sleeping, all events are a part of the life at CHS - after 2:15.

Monica Perry

Calling it as he sees it. Senior J. D. Underwood worked Saturday mornings during the fall calling little league football games.

A weekend out. Relaxing at VA Tech on one of her college visits is Maura Riordan.
Win, Lose or Draw. Glenn Samick and Leslie White work together to get their message across to their friends.

Keep folding. Folding flowers for the senior class float kept Nina Sperber busy for many afternoons - and nights.

Cashing In

"Hi-ho, hi-ho, it's off to work we go..." This might be the tune inside seven little CHS students as they head off to work although their jobs might not be in diamond mine.

Most students work part-time at various shops and food places. A reason why students work. MONEY. Yes, it is a basic need because students can't seem to function without it. Although money is the primary reason for working, there are other reasons to work. "To have something to do, experience, and, of course, money, but not exactly in that order," one CHS worker noted.

One can find students working at Ames, McDonalds, and even babysitting. Yes, these are tough jobs, but somebody has got to do them. Some even work at Yogurt Delite and the downtown Leggett. Students can even be found working at Waterside in Norfolk.

So, hi-ho, hi-ho ... It's home from work we go. We've worked all day to rest all night. Hi-ho. Hi-ho. Hi-ho.

Debbie Canada

"What flavor would you like? Pina colada, perhaps?" Waiting patiently for the customer's response, Trey Hanbury enjoys his job at Yogurt Delite.

... And the catch of the day is. Junior Kerri Carroll smiles for the camera as she feeds the fish.

"Yes, ma'am, we accept checks." Senior Angela Thornton takes time to make her customers satisfied.

"And what size do you need?" Surely Adrienne Murden would exchange something for you or refund your money. She works at the new Ladies' Apparel Warehouse in Portsmouth.

Hurry up. I'm late for work. Junior Melisa Dean heads to Burger King to prepare some Whoppers.
Where does this go? Senior Peggy Thomas gets caught in the action while working at the Clothes Line.

Ben Thomason, Kira Krumm win Mr. and Miss CHS titles

"Dreamgirls."

This theme marked one of the most exciting events of the year - the 1988 Mr. and Miss Churchland Pageant.

The excitement began when the thirty-six contestants were selected by the junior and senior homeroom students. The choreogragphy practices brought about even more fun. But the frivolity was to end when it came time for the interviews. When waiting for their turn, many contestants expressed their nervousness and their concern for impressing the judges, especially the guys who were interviewed for the first time in the pageant's history. The next and final step in the nail biting process was the actual pageant. After the contestants paraded in their sportswear and their formalwear, Debbie Young, the mistress of ceremonies, announced the five male and female finalists - Kim Hall, Van Younkins, Kira Krumm, Ben Thomason, Lisa McCoy, Patrick Roberts, Heather Gilstrap, Brian Jarvis, Ben Hester, and Adrienne Murden. After the questioning round, the winners were announced. Second runners up were Kim Hall and Ben Hester and first runners up were Heather Gilstrap and Brian Jarvis. The shoes of the 1988 Mr. and Miss Churchland were finally filled by Ben Thomason and Kira Krumm.

Although Ben and Kira wore the banners, every contestant and member of the audience was a winner.

Step. Together. Step. Step. Sound easy? Well, it's not.

In preparation for the Mr. and Miss Churchland Pageant, there were many obstacles to overcome. Perhaps the most difficult was learning the dance routine for the opening number. When Natalie Riddick, who choreographed the routine, first showed the dance to the other contestants, their mouths dropped. The dance seemed impossible to learn with only three days before the pageant. With Natalie's help and lots of practice, however, the girls were able to put together a delightful and energetic opening number that was fun for both the contestants and the audience alike.

"O-kla-ho-ma!"

Could jealousy lead to murder? Is true love so strong?

These were just a few of the problems faced in this year's musical Oklahoma, presented by Churchland's drama and music departments.

Set on an Oklahoma farm at the turn of the century, the story centers around the true love between Curly and Laurey, played Jeff Walton and Susan Crandall. Along with other characters, the audience found true love, jealousy and suspense.

Of course, behind this large cast, there were many important behind the scenes people. Mrs. Linda Mattson headed the direction of the drama with Bella Surrells and Andy Ryder assisting as student directors. Mr. Michael Gilpatrick, directed, as well as accompanied, the music.

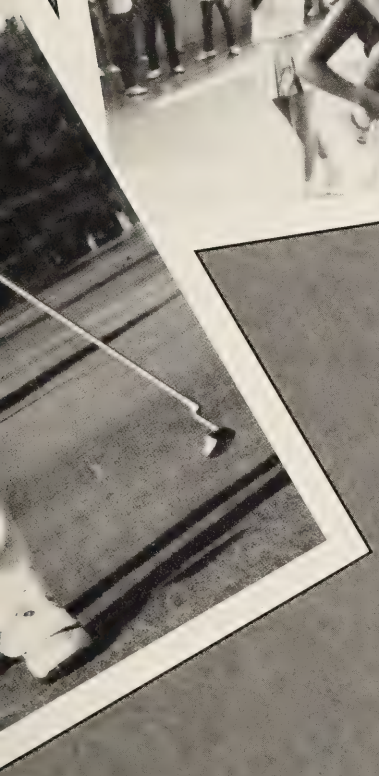
SPORTS



PSSST!! Hey, I have a secret about the sports at CHS.

The sports are moving upward. The students who are going out for these sports are not going out just to letter in the sport; they are striving to be all they can be.

Many have already proved that they have put in their share of hard work. CHS sportsmen are indeed top notch. If they are not top notch, they are correcting the,selves so that they may be the ultimate - number one.

The secret of our success in sports is not the sport itself; it's the sportsman.

Paul Ridenour

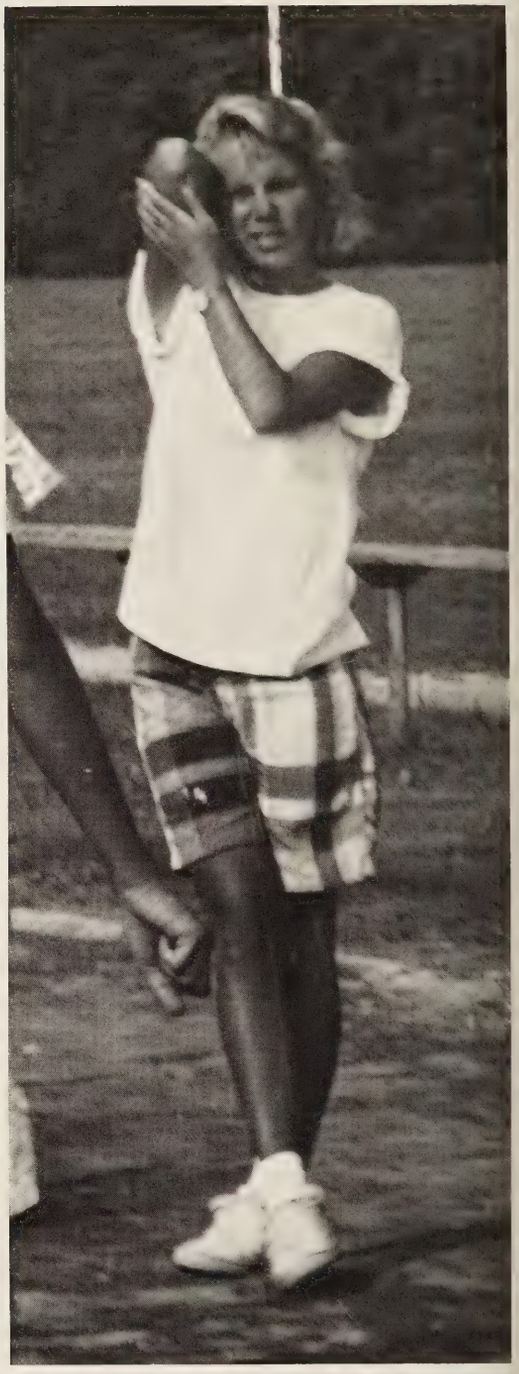
A hole in one? Not quite, however, top golfer Brian Tarkenton, as well as Shawn James and Tommy Neal, did advance to regional golf competition.
Who's number one? CHS, of course. At an early pep rally varsity cheerleaders Adrienne Murden and Karen Moser show who's got the spirit.

"It's too early for practice. My body won't fall in place!" A thought which every cheerleader, like Beth Atkinson, had when she had to get up at 7:00 a.m. each morning for summer practice.



"Is this right?" Confusion is natural for many cheerleaders, like Kara Davis, after learning over fifty chants and cheers throughout the year.

We've got the Trucker spirit

"C. H. S. A little louder!"

As the clock counts down, the cheerleaders start to yell for the school's team. To lead the crowd and rally the players is their goal, and the hard work and hours of practicing prepare the Truckers for a winning attitude.

Waking up at 7:00 in the morning in the beginning of August is not what most call fun, but both varsity and junior varsity dedicated their last three weeks of summer to practice for the 1987-88 athletic season. The attitude and cooperation of all thirty girls is needed to organize cheers, stunts, pep rallies, and spirit signs. They spend many extra hours so that they can proudly represent Churchland High School.

In June both squads also participated in a cheering camp held at Old Dominion University. The squads won superior honors and enhanced their cheering ability.

From cheerobics to drum chants, the cheerleaders were sure to be heard among all the other schools. They worked hard to promote spirit throughout the school and are proud to yell for CHS.

Three golfers make regionals

Churchland sent three of their golfers - Tommy Neal, Shawn James, and Brian Tarkenton - to regional golf action.

To acquire this honor, each golfer had to shoot a two day total of 168 or less. Tommy Neal led CHS golfers with a 155, putting him in third place, tied with a Cradock golfer. Shawn James pulled through and shot a 164. Barely making the cut was Brian Tarkenton, who shot a 168 over the two day period. Brian won his spot by ousting two other golfers in a sudden death playoff.

In regional action the weather played a major factor in determining who would go to the state tournament. Fierce winds and cold weather were Churchland's disadvantages. Although Neal, James, and Tarkenton did not make it to state, all three put up a tough fight. Neal led Churchland by shooting an 87-78 for a two day total of 165, putting him in 15th place in the region.

Heading up the coaching duties for the team was Mr. John Sykes, who followed Sgt. Major Billy Tate at the helm. Sykes, in his first year as coach, kept the team in district contention, coming only a few strokes from making regional team play.

Hester sets district record

It's a cool, breezy afternoon in October, and you can hear the sound of feet pounding the ground, faster and faster. The crowd cheers. Why?

The Churchland cross country team has just captured the Southeastern District Cross Country Championship. After winning the city cross country meet for the sixth time in as many years, the team set a goal to win the district meet, and indeed they did. In the regional meet at Mt. Trashmore, the team placed seventh overall, which was three places short of the whole team qualifying for the state competition.

Churchland was led by Ben Hester who set a Churchland Park cross country course record in the district meet. Hester also qualified for the state cross country meet at U. Va. by coming in ninth in the regional meet at Mt. Trashmore.

Churchland also received great performances from seniors Trey Hanbury, Leodan Wood, Karl Teemant, Richie Daniels, Mark Guyot, and Jimmy English. The runners who did exceptionally well and will be back next year to defend the city and district titles are Juan Wood, Andy Cottingham, Troy Edwards, Greg Canada, and John Wood.

"The team had great senior leadership, and they seemed to coach themselves," noted Coach Shelton Wilson. "They knew how to prepare and knew what was expected of them. The team ran as a unit and gave 250% everytime."

The emotions of the crowd are mounting!

Crush!

The tennis ball is hurled across the net as if shot out of a cannon.

Ace!

Churchland has won another match.

It was an outstanding season for the girls' tennis team. With the return of Coach Charlotte McEachern, there was no stopping the team.

"We had a strong team this year," noted JinAh Lee, the number two player.

The team came in second in regular season play, and again placed second in the district tournament.

Tri-captains Jessica Canos, MaryBeth Honaker, and JinAh Lee were only three of the five returning players. The others were SunAh Lee and Shyunih Chough. The new players were Michelle Harrison, Vicky Yearby, Jenny Lee, and Mariella Yawn, who was seeded sixth.

Jessica Canos and JinAh Lee captured the district double title to advance to regionals where they came in third.

"Churchland hasn't sent players to regionals in a long time," Canos proudly noted.

No way but up!

The Trucker football team had a very disappointing season this year although they showed a vast improvement from last year. In a rebuilding year, the Truckers showed great poise and charisma in each game both offensively and defensively.

Offensively, the Trucker attack was led by Taylor Rhodes. Rhodes, a junior, threw for over 700 yards and six touchdowns. His favorite target was wide receiver Wallace Bell, a senior. Bell had over 350 yards receiving while scoring four touchdowns. The backfield consisted of fullback ALbert Hill and halfbacks Sean Goodman and Avery Mayfield, who are all juniors. Rhodes, this year, worked with a formidable offensive line, consisting of senors Mike Carroll at center, David Posey and John Ackiss at tackles, and junior William Wong and sophomore Shawn Garfield at guards.

Defensively, the team was led by linebackers Terry Mayne and Chad Bryant. Both played exceptionally well throughout the season. The defensive line consisted of Shawn Garfield at nose and seniors Sean Rountree and Antwan Tillman at tackles. Brian Stanley and Robert Ross made up the seondary.

The season was more successful than the 1-9 record, which included a forfeit from Wilson High School, shows. Wide receiver Wallace Bell was selected for both all city and Southeastern District second team honors. All Southeastern District honorable mentions were also awarded to Mike Carroll and Taylor Rhodes.

With thirteen starters returning next year, the Truckers may just be a contender in the district. And with JV players coming up to varsity, the chances are even better.

William Wong

Ahh! Refreshment! Senior Maurice Collins takes a break from another tough game to drown his agony in a drink of water.

Hut one! Hut two!

Hut one; hut two; hike!

This was the cadence of the 1987 junior varisity led by Coaches Bill Griswold and John York.

With a 33-8 score, the most memorable game was the last game of the season, a victory against Cradock. In this game John Morris, a defensive and offensive tackle, Eric Grey, a wide receiver, and Scott Bradshaw, a quarterback, showed what had made them top players of the season.

Although their record was 3-5, the team had a good season in recruiting players for the team, players that will lead the junior varsity and varsity teams next year. With the returning players and some good rookies, the team promises to be in contention with other Portsmouth squads.

The bounces of varsity success

Dribble. Dribble. Dribble... No, it's not a messy baby. It is another Tuesday or Friday night at Churchland Jr. High and the Churchland boys' varsity basketball team is providing excitement for the fans and students.

The 1987-88 squad had a season of ups and downs. At one point during the season, the team had a five game winning streak and was ranked ninth in a basketball poll of area coaches. But then a three game losing streak hit.

The team was lead by seniors Eric Wynn, Robert Holloman and Quinton Drewry. Wynn, ranked among the area leaders in scoring, provided Churchland with a potent three point attack. Holloman, also ranked among area leading scorers, suffered an injury to his ankle early in the season and came back through with good perimter shooting. Drewry provided strong all around play in the middle.

The team received outstanding contributions from Leodan Wood, Karl Teemant, Thomas Sessoms, Doug Anderson, Alvin Darden, Taylor Rhodes, Mike Keasey, Damion Tineo, and Anthony Pearson. Anderson, Rhodes, Darden, Tineo, Keasey, and Pearson are expected to return for the 88-89 campaign.

Didawick looks toward next year

After an up and down season, Churchland's varsity girls' basketball team can look forward to next year to bring home the district championship because the team consists of no seniors and the entire squad is expected to return next year.

The Lady Truckers' new coach, Mark Didawick, is finishing up his first year at the post of head coach. The season was a "gettin' to know ya" type season as Didawick scouted what he will have to work with next year. Not having to worry about graduation claiming any players has to reassure Didawick of having a winning season next year.

Allison Ayres led the squad this season. The team as a whole received substantial contributions from Dana Christmas, Michelle Sunnucks, April Lacy, Sonya Wagstaff, Heidi Ecklesdafer, Stacy Mangum, Theresa Massengill, Shannon Pearson, and Janice Hughes, who ranged from juniors to freshmen.

Kent Saunders

What goes up must come down. April Lacy logically waits for the rebound.
A-W-E-S-O-M-E. Naturally a victory. The Lady Truckers are nothing but smiles as they win yet another game.

Things are looking good. As the Lady Truckers head for the lockerroom after the first half, Coach Mark Didawick plans his strategy to continue the lead.

Whoops. Wrong way. In an intrasquad game, a player seeks to stifle the opposing side's offense.

Babb finishes second year as J. V. coach

The 1987-88 season marked the second year Coach Kenny "Choo Choo" Babb was at the helm of the boys' junior varisty basketball team.

Although the team only won three games, many star players developed to lead the team and to produce the victories. Top scorers included Jonathan Ballard, Steve Smith, and Aaron Harper.

The team never gave up when they were losing. Each member realized the importance of teamwork and development of mental skills. As usual the team lost a substantial part of last year's team to the varsity squad, completing one of its functions as a feeder to the varsity team.

Jennifer Forehand

Where's the ball? Mike Williams, John Robinson, and Mark Elliott wait patiently amidst the action for the ball.

Girls' JV sports four returners

The buzzer sounds, and all that can be heard is the sound of fourteen girls screaming and jumping for joy.

The girls' junior varsity basketball team started the season with four wins, including victories over Norcom, Cradock, and Manor. The first game against Manor was a close one, but the squad pulled it off in overtime, beating the Mustangs 24-23.

Leading the team were four returning players Kristi Ladd, Heather Goodwin, Adria Parker, and Monique Elliott. Leading the scoring attack was Kisha Bagby, an eighth grader attending Churchland Jr. High.

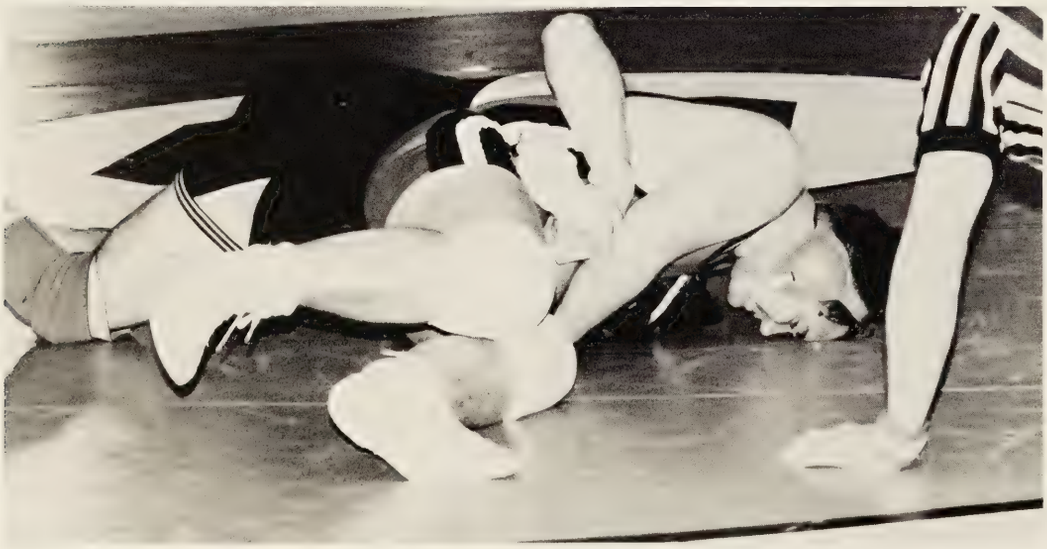
Back at the helm. After a year's absence John Mounie returned as head wrestling coach, assisted by William Strickland.



Oh, my head. Senior Thomas Rawles drives another opponent to the mat in a long, grueling match.

Thirsty? Inhaling his water after a match is Thomas Rawles.

Mounie returns as wrestling coach

In his return as coach, Jack Mounie led his team to a better than .500 season.

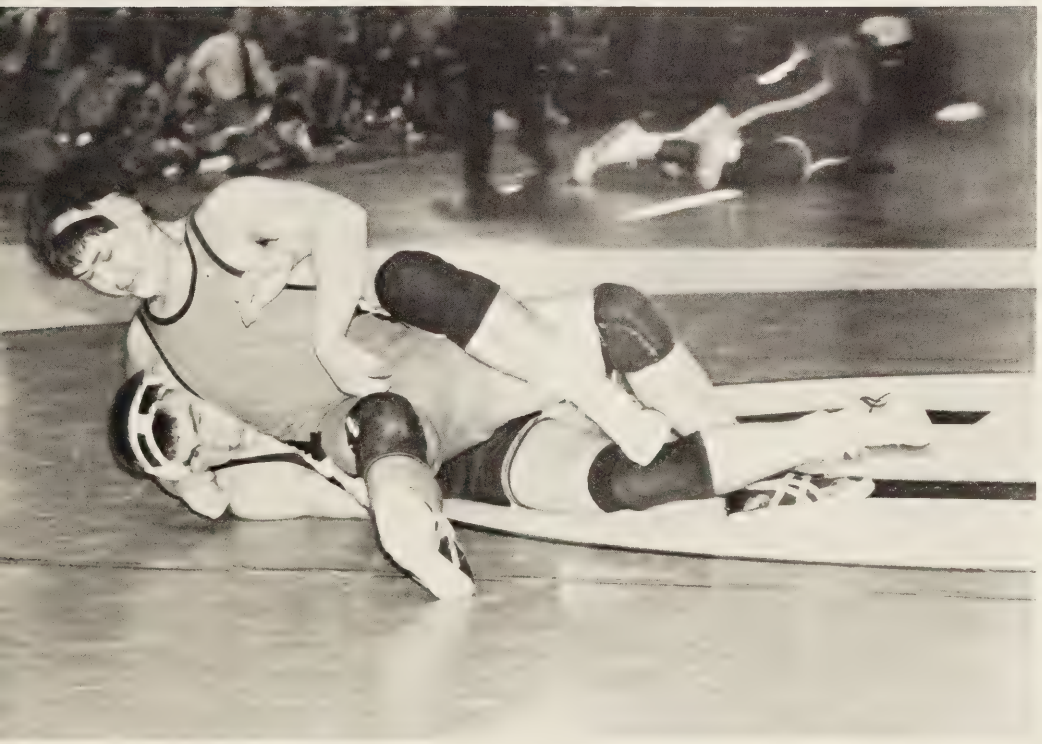
Even though the record may not reflect it, the team peformed well throughout the season, especially at the Portsmouth Invitational Tournament, finishing second to Maury by only 3 1/2 points, out of an eight team field. Individual honors went to Chris Angelillo (3rd/98lbs.), Danny Angelillo (2nd/112), Charles Harper (1st/126), Martin McNair (2nd/132), Bobby Bekier (3rd/138), Chris Bartlett (1st/145), Steve Guyon (3rd/155) and Mike Carroll (2nd/167). Larry Parker (105), Sandy Crone (119), William Wong (176), and Thomas Rawles (185) also performed well in the tournament.

The team consisted mainly of underclassmen. With two freshmen, four sophomores, four juniors, and three seniors, many of the matmen will be returning. Only Martin McNair, Thomas Rawles, and Mike Carroll will be graduating.

With ten returners and a few prospects from the JV team, the team hopes to peak next year.

William Wong

Ready. Wrestle. These are the words Chris Angelillo waits to hear.



2. Reversal. The referee gives Bobby Bekier two points for his reversal in his match against a Western Branch opponent.

Boys' Soccer

Conrad enters second year as soccer coach

Talent is the key word to describe the 1988 boys' soccer team. Coach Duke Conrad, who is in his second year as head soccer coach, had several players returning this year.

Among the returning players who emerged as team leaders were Mike Keefer, Mark Guyot, and Leodan Wood. These leaders pulled the team together, hoping to capture a district championship.

These senior leaders were joined by junior Aaron Addison, who was expected to lead the scoring force for the Truckers.

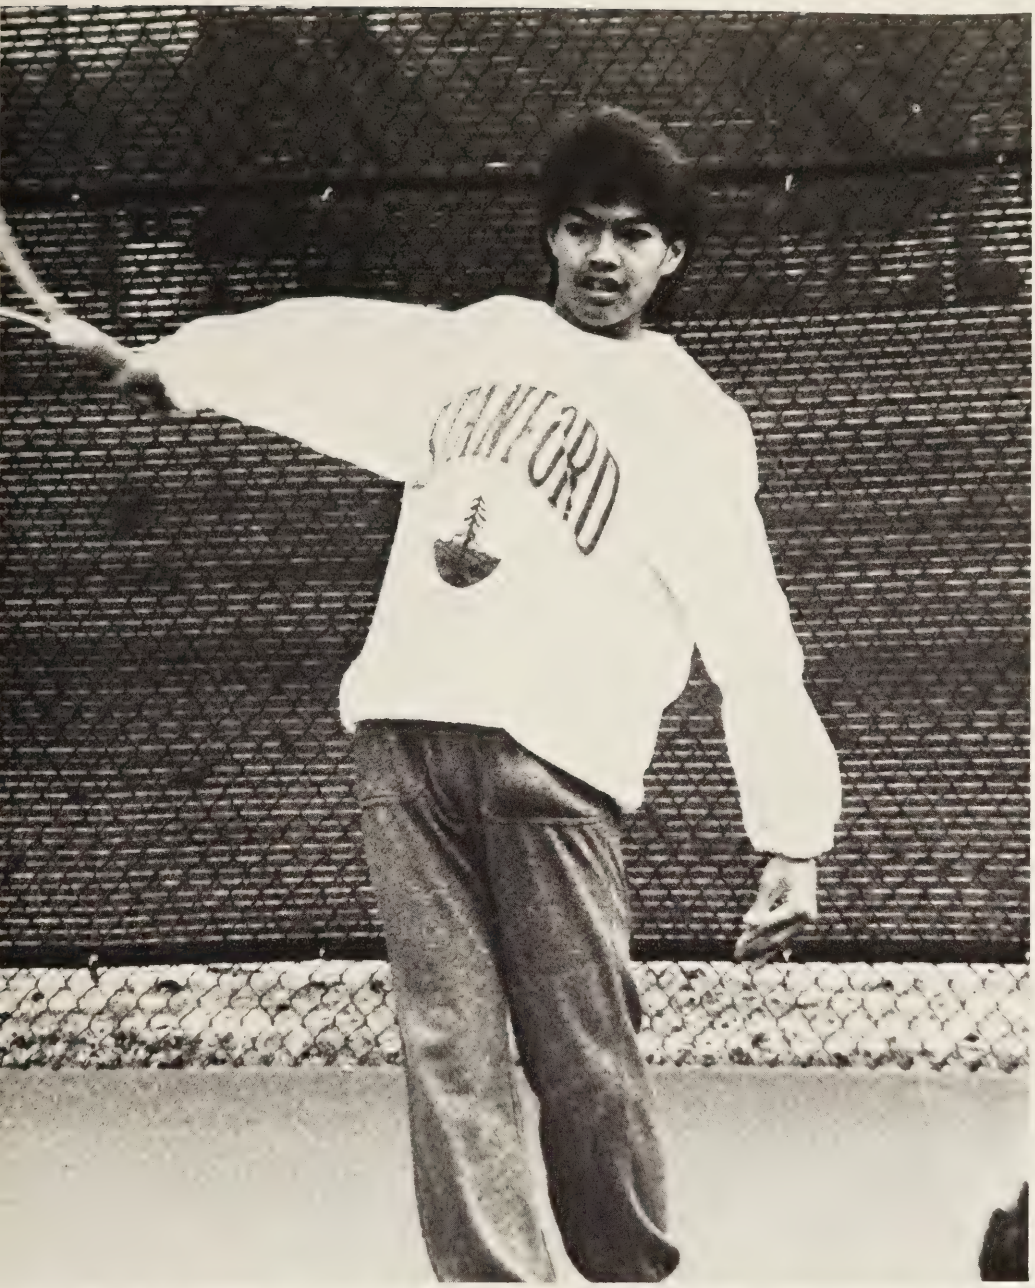
That's right! Eyes on the ball! Jonathan Steinberg strives for pefection as he keeps his eye on the ball during early tennis pratices.



Five return to varsity baseball

The 1988 Trucker varsity baseball team must rely on its five returning players for experience. Greg Piland, Steve Keefer, Taylor Rhodes, Mike Keasey, and Ronnie Culpepper will lead the team this season. New players include J. D. Underwood, Shawn Harris, Sandy Crone, Deano Harrison, Brian Jarvis, Jeff Curry, and Sean Goodman.

After placing second in the district last season, the boys' tennis team hopes to better its standing even more. Returning players Phillip Thomason, Gary Bennett, Chai Cosby, Jason Jones, and Glenn Samick will fight for seeded places left open by last year's players.

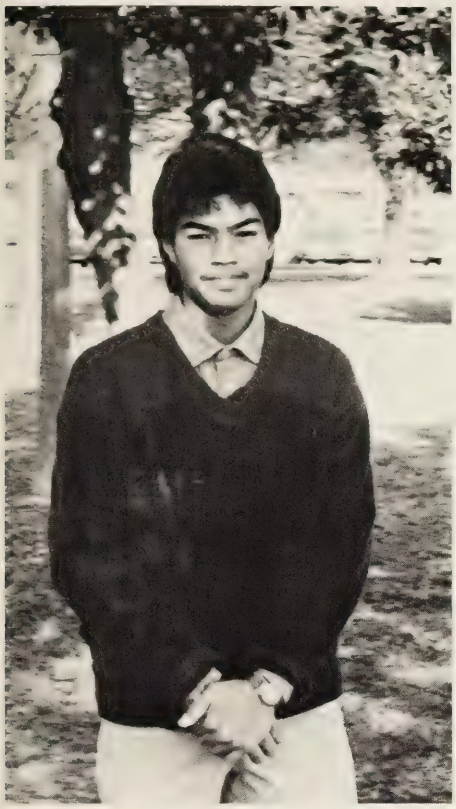
Saluting the year's top athletes

What makes an athlete exceptional? Hours of practice. Scoring more points than anyone else. Leadership. Character. Self discipline.

It's all of these things and more.

Too often in the shuffle of the game, an athlete and his or her accomplishments are overlooked. In an effort to recognize outstanding athletes, the journalism class has chosen to feature athletes that we believe are exceptional in their sport. Selections were made on ability, leadership, character, and integrity.

And here they are the Hall of Famers for 1988.



Boys' Tennis
Chai Cosby

The crowd looked on. The first set was lost. Jessica Canos and Jin Ah Lee weren't down. Their spirits were higher than ever. They won the next two sets which won them first place in the district in doubles.

Lee was seeded second during the season while Canos was seeded third. They were two of the tri-captains of girls' tennis.

When regionals came, Canos and Lee came in third. Although they were disappointed about not advancing to state, they were proud of their accomplishments in the district match.

Stephanie James
Sun Ah Lee

Boys' Varsity Basketball
Eric Wynn and Robert Holloman

Have you ever heard the saying, "You've go to learn to crawl before you walk"? Well, Ben Hester seems to have jumped out of his crib and ran down the hall.

Ben began running seriously at the age of seven. He has stuck to this sport for ten years. He dedicates most of his spare time to running, and his dedication has recently paid off. During the fall cross country session Ben won the Southeastern district championship.

Ben began cross country his freshmen year as thirteenth in the district with a time of 18:21 and ended his cross country career as senior with a time of 15:34, the time that gave him his title.

Peggy Thomas

An excellent athlete excels in more than one sport, and Alison Ayres is no exception to the rule.

Alison Ayres is Churchland's best female soccer player. Last season as center forward and sweeper, she scored most of the Lady Truckers' goals, and for her efforts she was named to the all district team.

Alison was instrumental in bringing girls' soccer to Churchland. Although soccer is he favorite sport, Alison also excels at basketball.

J. D. Underwood

Although he has only been playing the game for four years and has only been on the team for two years, Chai Cosby has already claimed the number one spot as a junior.

Chai's accomplishments include reaching the quarterfinals of the district singles championships and reaching the semifinals of the district doubles with his partner Glenn Samick.

Chai also enjoys basketball, soccer, and racquetball and is a member of the National Honor Scoiety.

Kent Saunders

Wallace Bell, co-captain and wide receiver for the Truckers, certainly has reason to swagger through the halls of CHS. He scored the team's first touchdown of the season with a dazzling 61 yard touchdown pass against Oscar Smith. Because he made 17 receptions for 313 yards, Bell was selected as a wide receiver for the all city and district second teams.

Bell strived to give the Truckers his complete support. Never one for superficial pep talk, Bell offered words of encouragement, coupled with constructive criticism when the team ran into rough spots during the season. He was even regularly featured in live on the air phone conversations with a local radio station defending the Truckers.

Dana Powell

Determination. This is the word that best describes Dana Christmas.

Dana, a sixteen year old junior, is a third year player on the girls' varsity basketball team, consitently scoring well in her position as a guard.

Her ultimate goal is to play in the Olympics. So look forward to Dana playing with the best someday.

Paul Ridenour

Although this was his first year on the junior varsit football team, John Morris made a name for himself.

Making twenty-three sacks was just "like a lot of fun" to John, who played offensive and defensive tackle.

Aside from football John is interested in wrestling, tennis, weightlifting, and basketball.

Heather Smith

Although Eric Wynn isn't very tall, he makes up for his height disadvantage with his ability to jump and rebound.

Eric, a senior and a 6'1" forward, was the fourth highest scorer in the district and ninth in the region.

Debbie Canada

Thinking, eating and sleeping basketball. That's how Bobby Holloman and Quinton Drewry have managed to keep the Truckers in district contention.

Their dedication to the sport, their on the court leadership, and their determination for excellence have made Drewry and Holloman examples of excellence in basketball.

Holloman was named honorable mention in the 1986-87 city and Southeastern district teams and was selected to the Five-Star National Basketball Camp last year.

Drewry contributed, on the average, 10 points, 11 rebounds and six assits per game this season while giving his all as team captain.

Dana Powell

More Hall of Famers ...

His achievements include a second place in the 100m relay and a third place in the 200m relay. He's also received awards for being the most outstanding sprinter and for being the most dedicated sprinter.

He's Randolph Joyner, Churchland 's main sprint man for indoor track and a rising star in the world of track.

J. D. Underwood

Working hard. That's how Mikaela Morris and Kelly Smith have reached the top of the girls' track scene.

Kelly, the captain of the track team, has received trophies for the 4 x 400 mile relay in the city meet. She was also named most dedicated runner by the team while Mikaela captured the best female sprinter award.

Jin Ah Lee

Accolades in golf went to Tommy Neal and Shawn James, who both placed in district golf action, giving them the opportunity to advance to regional action.

Neal placed third out of 100 participants in the district tournament. James also ranked in the top of district action.

Leigh Bender

Soccer superstars include Leodan Wood, Mike Keefer, and Mark Guyot.

Wood, a three year team veteran, plays midfield. His speed and strong dribbling kick are two main points which set Leodan aside from the others.

Protecting the goal is where you're likely to find 6' 4" MIke Keefer. This four year veteran is also recognized for his defensive mind.

Diving for the ball and getting filthy are two characteristics of goalie Mark Guyot, also known as "Pfaff." Guyot, a four year veteran, is regarded as the key man on the team.

Debbie Canada

Potential and determination. These are the two words that come to mnind when one thinks of wrestlers Stephen Guyon and William Wong. Each strives to be the best, constantly practicing, going that extra mile to show the coach that they're interested and dedicated to the sport of wrestling.

Senior Mike Carroll has shown his dedication in a more physical way. Carroll was fourth in his weight class in the Southeastern district meet and qualified for the Eastern regional wrestling tournament.

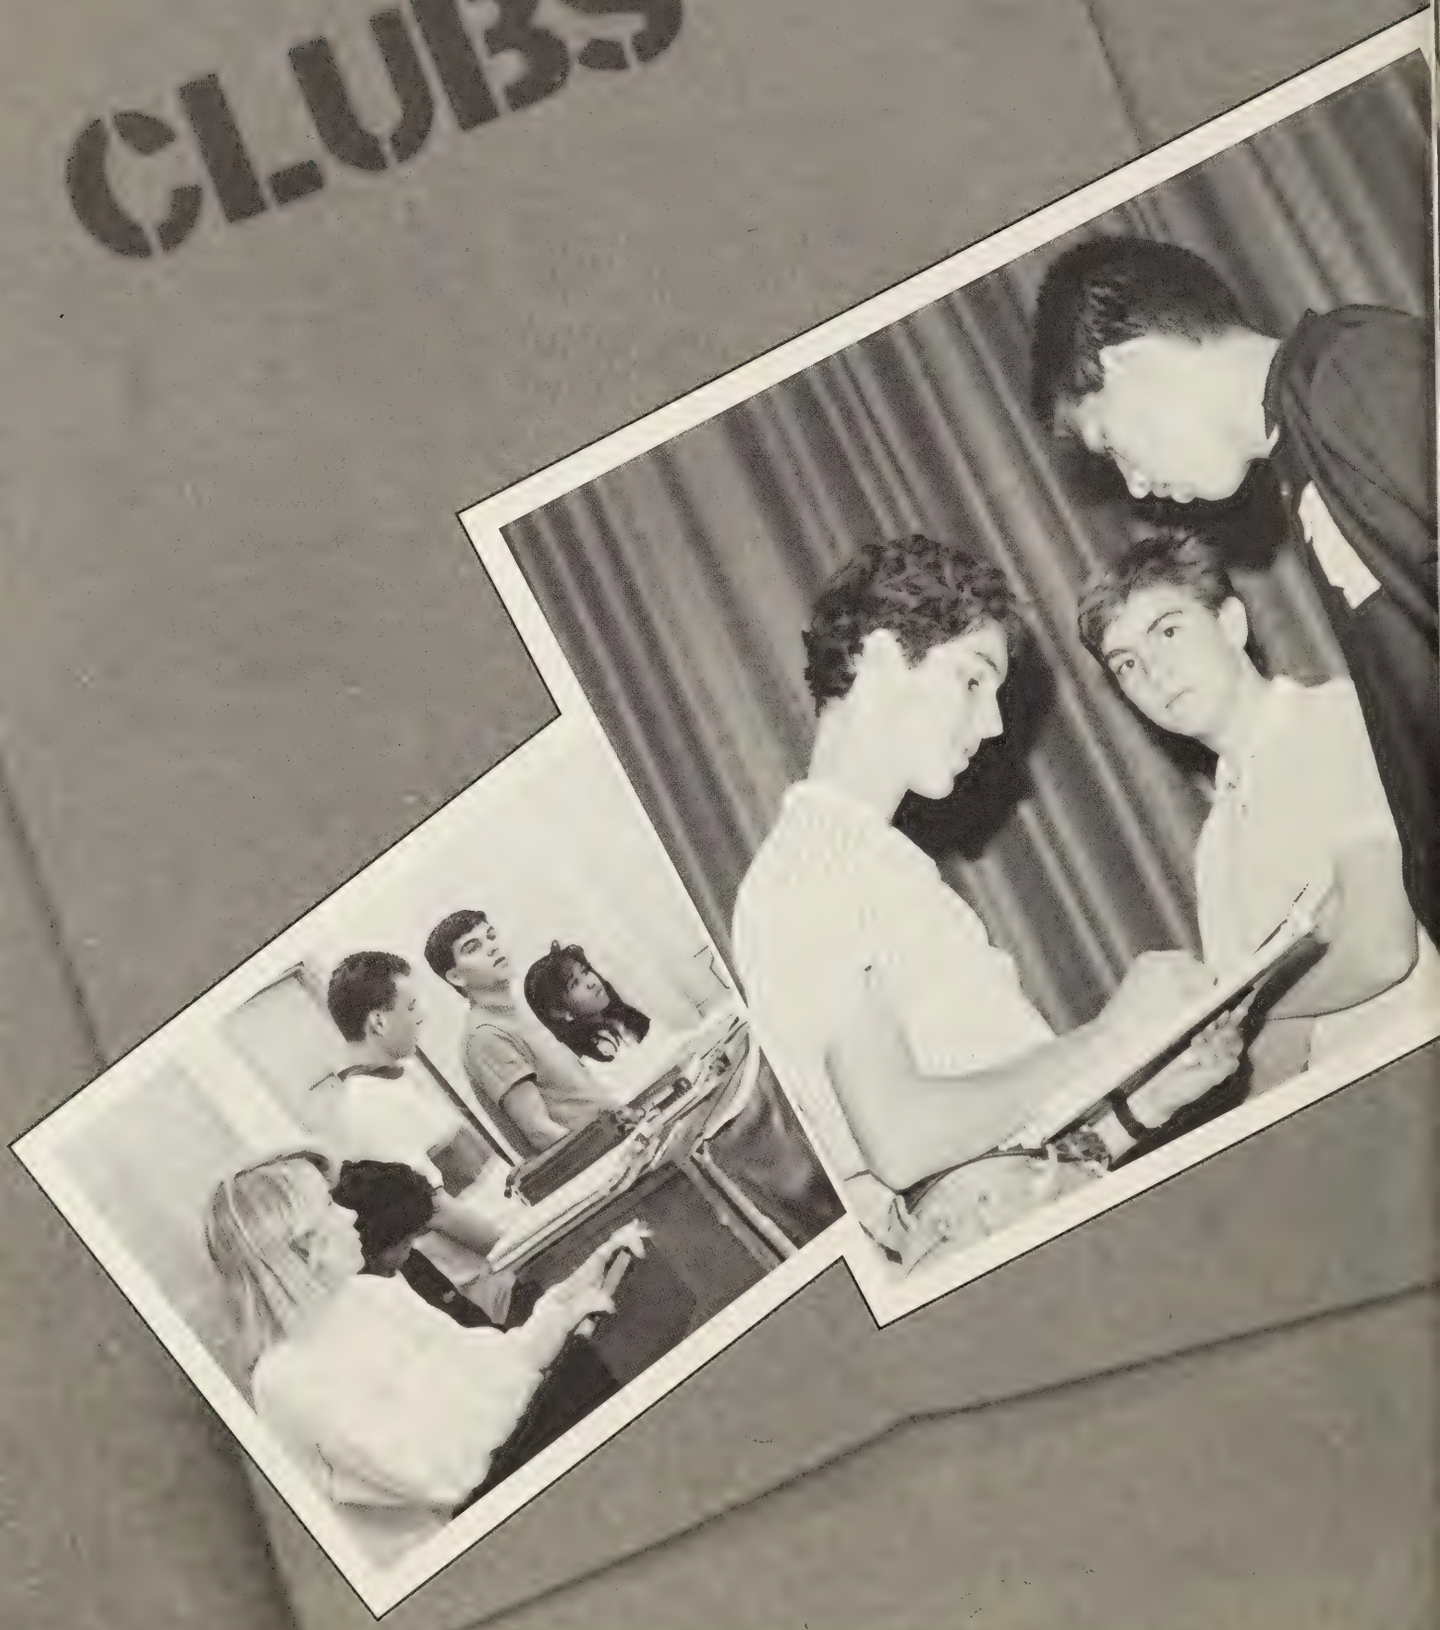
CLUBS



Every second and fourth Wednesday it happens. Whether you're involved or not, on every second and fourth Wednesday of the month, activity period appears.

Although some clubs meet after school, most still meet during the allotted times.

One new club joining the activity period scene is JETS, sponsored by Mr. Walt McDonald, Mrs. Helen Luster, and Mrs. Barbara Copeland. Junior Engineering Technical Society (JETS) deals with high school students considering a career in engineering, mathematical sciene, or technology.

You're bound to see this club and all the others make a difference.

Melody Williams

And, what's your suggestion? As president of the National Honor Society, Beth Atkinson conducts a monthly meeting of the group. December's topic of discussion was the tutoring program offered by the society.

And your name please? All throughout picture day, Dustin Fedei kept asking this same question, this time to Leo Teemant and Karl Teemant.

Another hot day. Summer and August meant practice and more practice for drummers Will Apperson and Brian Jarvis.

Revise the lead. Catch the reader's attention. Features Editor Dana Powell offers some advise to photographer Jenny Forehand on how to catch and hold the reader's attention. Staff members like Jenny had to assume more than one role on the staff.

Journalism honors. Nine CHS journalists were recognized by the Quill and Scroll, a national honor society for journalists, for outstanding work in the field of journalism.

Journalism class offered once again

Though it is only a mere 19 people, this year's journalism class, the first offered since 1984, has a lot of talent and creativity.

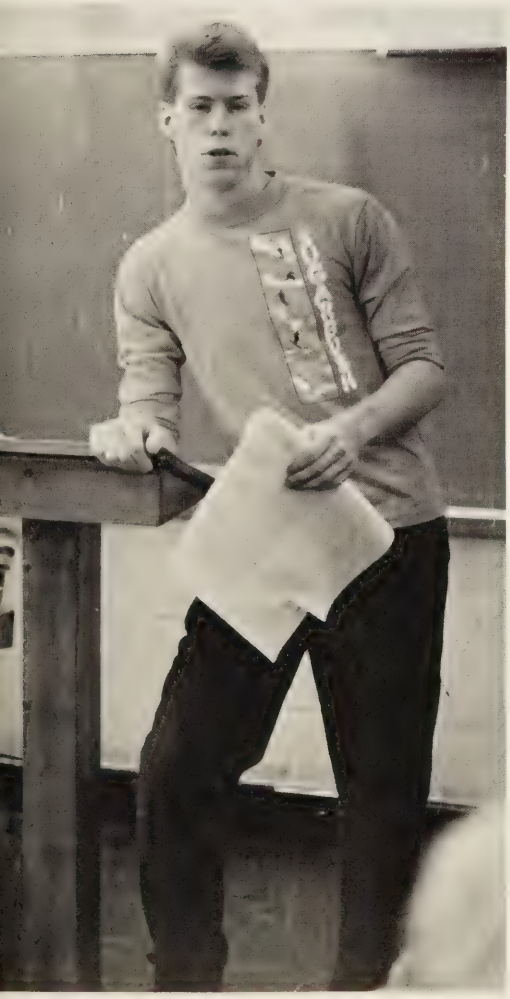
Teacher Mr. Marvin Fanny put in a careful thought and planning in choosing this year's class. He was looking for people with different ways of perceiving a wide variety of topics. Mr. Fanny also looked for people with interests in writing, art and photography.

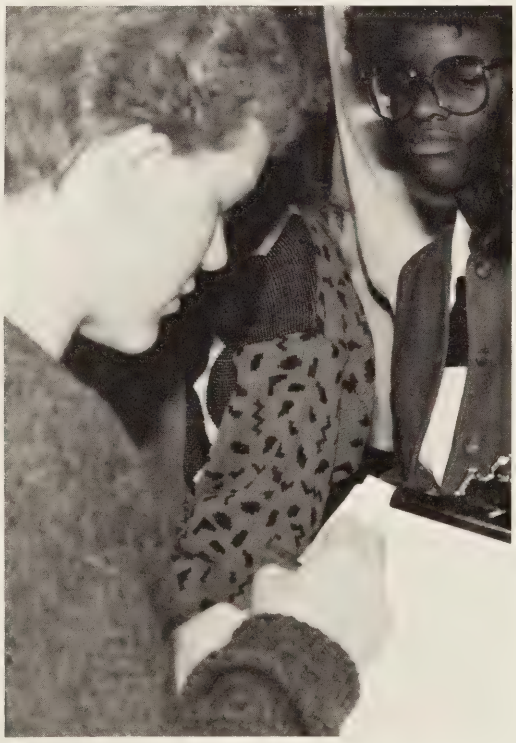
Journalism isn't all fun and games though there is plenty of laughter to go around. Some of the students in the class are taking the class because of certain career interests. For example, Jenny Forehand wants to pursue a career in photography. Bert Scott wants to get into broadcasting, and he felt journalism would further educate him in this field. Melody Williams wishes to pursue a career in writing.

The main concern of the class was the publication of the yearbook and the reorganization of a school newspaper.

Heather Smith

Tigthen up your writing. New staff member Jamie Samuels is given help on his fashion article by Dana Powell.





And how do you spell it? Staff member Ross Cherry gets his first hands on experience as he takes names on club picture day.
Another layout? His expression says it all. Leigh Bender readies himself for another try at laying out the underclassmen section.

Fun and games??? Heather Smith takes a break from collecting name sheets on picture day. At least it only comes once a year!

Service with a smile. Senior Rob Jones always greets his customers with a smile. Rob obtained his job at Ames through the marketing education program.

Chad, the other senior class officers, and the advisory board members were kept busy planning gradution and baccalaureate services and coordinating senior week activities. Funding for the events came from class dues and a spring carnation sale.

Junior class president Amy Yearby spent most of her time working with Mr. Earl Mabry in a effort to pull off the annual Junior Senior Prom. Funding for the event came from class dues, candy sales, and past sales campaigns.

Selling drinks and candy at home basketball games was a major project for sophomore class president Shawn Garfield and his other classmates.

The freshmen, led by Tiffany Poole, conducted a winter candy sales program and held a semi-formal Christmas dance to help offset the cost of the prom and graduation activities.

"Anne Frank" begins busy drama season

Lights. Camera. Action!

Where do these words come from? Why the theatre, of course. This year the drama students have been as busy as ever and as great as ever too. The thespians were the only Portsmouth school to compete in the Virginia Theatre Association Conference held in October in Fairfax, VA. The group also staged a production of "The Diary of Anne Frank" and collaborated with the music department on "Oklahoma."

What's next for these busy actors? The group also helped the Little Theatre of Portsmouth and Parks and Recreation Department by providing ushers, backstage workers, and performers for their productions. Other activities included a spring production and competing in the Virginia High School One-Act Play Festival.

Indeed CHS thespians have been busy pounding the boards.

New clubs, New sponsors

So you ask what's new on the activity period scene. A lot.

Several new clubs organized this year. A science and technology oriented group, JETS, was organized to foster engineering and science related careers. The Leisure Arts Club, formed by Mrs. Marilyn Trusedell, gave students an opportunity to pursue small craft activities. French students organized a French Club while industrial arts students reorganized the Industrial Arts Club which became known as the Technology Education Club. Another club seeing reorganization was the literary magazine. This year the magazine was coordinated by new English teacher Mrs. Judy Thompson.

The literary magazine wasn't the only club to get a new sponsor. The EFE club was now headed by Mrs. Cynthia Earl. AFS received two news sponsors in the form of Mrs. Susan Yearby and Mrs. June Tredway. SADD activities were coordinated now by Mrs. Annie Thompkins and Mrs. Juanita Wilks.

The hands have it. Sign language club members Deanna Cook and Paul Cratch converse with one another while waiting for the club picture to be taken. Check. Conquering an opponent in chess is the aim of Shane Faison during an activity period game of chess.

Band camp spurs successful year

Setting. Wakefield 4-H Band Camp. Time. Last week of August. Who. CHS Band. (Who else would sacrifice their last week of summer freedom to practice six long hours a day?)

Rising at 6:00 AM and working until 9:30 PM, taking time out only for meals and a little recreation and practicing a total of nine hours in the hot sun, band members, accompanied by coolers, sunglasses, drill charts, endurance and patience, honed their music skills.

Once school started, the practices became 2 1/2 hour afternoon work sessions with one goal in mind - perfection. Friday night's halftime show and four Saturday competitions gave the band a chance to show off their skills as did numerous Christmas pageants, the spring concert and a trip to Florida's Hall of Fame.

Each time the band played, its members and its dedicated leader Mrs. Gugler showed the secrets of their success.

Kay Mullins

Hit it. Showing off their skills learned at band camp, Will Apperson and Brian Jarvis strut their stuff during the homecoming parade.

Jazzin' it up. Adding a little spice to the concert and marching bands was the jazz band.

SCA proposes changes and improvements

In an effort to get more students involved in homecoming activities, the SCA proposed an amendment which would allow two homecoming representatives each for the freshmen and sophomore classes. The referendum passed overwhelmingly.

The SCA also sought to make changes in the school's appearance. While awaiting word on whether a new school was in the future or not, the SCA decided to institute an "It's a Matter of Pride" campaign aimed at cleaning up the school.

Other projects for the year included homecoming, teacher appreciation activities, and the annual elections which were scheduled to take place in homerooms instead of the usual assembly.

SCA sponsor Mrs. Lucy Lassiter was assisted this year by Ms. Cynthia Earl, Mrs. Sherrie Bridgeman, and Mr. Marvin Fanny.

PEOPLE

Physics... Honors classes... Marshals... PSAT... Drivers' Ed... These are just a few things that the people at CHS are involved in. People like Cathi Cantieri, Felicia Flores, Jim Cales, Tony Mason, and Greg Canada are all taking part in the different aspects of CHS. These people, classes and activities really show the secret of our success.

'88s Secret ... Elizabeth Foor

Keeping busy. Reviewing an English vocabulary lesson, as well as keeping the senior class in line, keeps sponsor Ms. Elizabeth Foor busy.

The secret of our success?

The Senior Class could tell you in a name what our secret is ... Ms. Elizabeth Foor.

Miss Foor took over as class sponsor two years ago when the class of 1988 was almost in ruins. "We had no money, organization, or anything," one senior noted, "until Ms. Foor came onto the scene." She started us on fundraisers on day one and continued with all the money making ideas until we had enough. Between rooter shakers, candy bars, and carnations, we came up with enough money to hold a very memorable prom.

Her goal was to be the best and it seems like it came true. She has been with us through the building of two first place floats, one wet powder puff game, and one beautiful prom.

When the time for graduation comes along, hectic times will be with us again. Miss Foor will be right there in the middle of it seeing that everything is done right. On the night of graduation, there will be tears, but the tears of Ms. Foor will be ones of sadness and happiness, knowing that she made the class of 1988 ready for the real world and made them what they are today - the best - will make her smile.

Somewhere down the road of life, we will look back and remember our senior year with fondness as we recall the times with Ms. Elizabeth Foor.

New Blood

St. Louis. Phillipines. Greensboro. Norway.

No, this is not a georgraphy lesson. These places are just a few of the origins for some seniors who joined the Trucker ranks at the beginning of their senior year.

Hoping to make their senior year, an already crucial time, a little easier to handle, these transfers were determined to make the most of the time. AFS student Siri Falch and transfers Jon Prindle and Randy Fritz soon joined the other Truckers in helping to design and build the senior float and were greeted with open arms.

And this new blood soon found success in sports and in the classroom, always keeping themselves motivated and showing their newly found Trucker pride.

Saluting the Best

Best All Around. Most Dependable. Best Personality. Most Likely to Succeed. A senior superlative is a way to notice a person who dserves recognition. Each senior votes for the seniors he feels suitable for each superlative. How a person acts, looks, what a person says or does — all affect the voting of senior superlatives.

The personality of a person is very important. Stephanie James and Ben Hester were honored with the positions of Best Personality. Their wit, friendliness, and smiling faces make it obvious why they were voted to have the best personalities.

As well as personality, physical beauty plays an important role in the senior superlatives. Adrienne Murden, Jolene Warren, and Chad Bryant were all given the honor of Best Looking, They earned their places by caring about their outer appearances.

Ambition and determination are two qualities which helped Melissa Cales and Greg Buxton achieve the positions of Most Likely to Succeed. They strive for success in their studies, as well as in their outside activities.

Practice, pratice, practice. Van Youkins and Susan Crandall both practice very much to be the best they can be. As Most Talented they work hard to give the best performances.

Most Athletic, Greg Piland and Debbie Canada, must also practice often to stay in their positions. Greg is a member of the track, baseball, and football teams. Debbie has played soccer, softball, and basketball.

Conscientious and trustworthy are two charateristics which signify the Most Dependable people. Kim Hall and Steve Keefer represent both of these characteristics. As Most Dependable, Kim and Steve are helpful, reliable, and caring.

One position that describes a well rounded person in the Best All Around title. Beth Atkinson and Trey Hanbury were awarded this honor. Beth and Trey are involved in their school work, school activities, and outside activites. They both strive to be the best at what they do. Beth and Trey will always extend a helping hand when one is needed. Friendliness, willingness, and involvement make Beth and Trey the Best All Around in 1988.

Everyone in the class deserves recognition for something. The senior superlatives are just a way to highlight a few of the best seniors of the class of 1988.

Caught in the Act. Reviewing Biology II notes before a lab quiz is just one way Melissa Cales stays on top of things. Her heavy class load also includes English 12 Honors, Physics, Analysis, and Latin V.

Striving for Success

Organized. Ambitious. Determined. These are words Melissa Cales uses to describe herself.

Organization is a necessity in maintaining her busy schedule. Not only does Melissa keep her grades high, but she is also active in many clubs, including the National Honor Society, the yearbook staff, and the Model United Nations.

Melissa stays involved during the school year, but her ambition keeps her on the go in the summer also. She attended Girls' State at Longwood and the Young Women in Science program at Mary Baldwin.

Melissa was selected "Most Likely to Succeed" from the classs of 1988. Success for her is a career in international relations. Melissa is determined to one day achieve her goal of becoming Secretary of the State of the United States.

Determination. Ambition. Organization. These are but three characteristics of one of Churchland High School's secrets - Melissa Cales.

Keeping '88 on the Right Track

It's the end of a grading period. In the guidance office Anita Richardson sits bombarded with paperwork. With reluctance I walk into her office to get a SAT form. I feel like I've interrupted her; yet she puts what she's doing aside and greets me with a smile and offers her help.

Miss Richardson has been the class of 88's guidance counselor for four years. Throughout these four years, she has always accepted students in this courteous manner. She also takes time to call each student individually to her office, just to see how he or she is progressing.

Whether it's offering advice on what subjects to take or making every bit of helpful information available to everyone, Miss Richardson has always taken time to help students.

"I'm so glad I have her as a guidance counselor." That's the general concensus from the student body that she sponsors.

Miss Anita Richardson has definitely been a secret of the class of 88's success.

Increased Requirements Force Class Additions

260 Seniors?

With so many seniors and stronger graduation requirements in math and science, administrators were forced to add an additional physics class to Mrs. Marcella McNeil's schedule, an additional trigonometry class to Mrs. Elizabeth Duke's schedule, and an additional English 12 Honors class to Mr. Marvin Fanny's schedule.

With more than one Honors English people are split from the "family" they have formed over the years. Monica Perry liked the idea of two classes because they are smaller, and in smaller classes there are better discussions. On the other hand, Jinah Lee doesn't think it was well thought out because there are almost twice as many people in the first class as in the second class.

So if you see Mr. Fanny, Mrs. Duke, or Mrs. McNeil running through the halls, they are probably thinking about all of those spirited seniors and the work that comes with them.

Saluting More of the Best of '88

It's a normal Friday morning in homeroom for underclassmen, but not for the seniors. Today the results of the senior superlatives will be announced. Everyone is anxious. Miss Foor walked into my homeroom. She looked directly at me and said, "I've got something for you." Boy, was I shocked.

This feeling was the reaction of the recipients of the senior superlatives. It was definitely a great feeling for all.

Lori Cherry and Terry Mayne received the Most Popular superlative. "I feel that I got most popular because I'm friendly to a variety oof people. I'm not snobby because I don't feel that I'm better than anyone else. I know how it feels to be rejected, and that's why I want everyone to feel that they belong. Also, I don't dislike any person," Lori noted. Lori is a varsity cheerleader and Terry is a varsity football player.

Carol Fosnocht and Rodney Black were picked for Friendliest. Carol felt she received this superlative because she wants to know every person. She loves meeting new people, and she wants to be everybody's friend.

The Most Studious in the class are Christen Mank and Gary Bennett. "I keep my grades up, I do my homework, and I learn by listening in class," Gary explains. Both are members of the honor society, and she was a Marshal.

There is no doubt that Jennifer Carroll and Jason Farwell always have a joke up their sleeves. If one of their friends is ever down, Jennifer or Jason has the ability to always cheer him up. "I like to see people laugh," Jennifer concedes.

Leslie White and Chad Dennis have "Most School Spirited" written all over them. They are always the loudest and most cheerful at the pep rallies and football games. "I got it because I'm very spastic and loud. I'm also very proud of CHS," Leslie adds. Co-winner Chad Dennis added, "I take a lot a pride in my school. I'm always cheerful and spirited, especially about the class of '88." Chad is president of the senior class.

Awhh.. aren't they cute? Even though Jessica Canos and Mike O'Connor were too modest to say anything, we know that they are the cutest.

Mary Beth Honaker and Phillip Thomason received the honor of Best Dressed, each putting so much pride into how he looks.

Cantieri a Merit Semi-finalist

Just being herself. Modeling her signature trademark coat is National Merit Scholarship semifinalist Cathi Cantieri.

Bizzare. Twisted. Pale. That's me. White skin, framed by black hair with brown roots and green eyes. I wear a lot of black. You've seen me; I know you have. You can't miss me. Okay, now you know who I am.

I'm a National Merit Scholarship semi-finalist. I can't lie; I'm happy about it. But I didn't get this way from working or studying - it was mostly luck. Just dumb luck. Life is like that.

I'm also a student at the Governor's Magnet School for the Arts - Theatre Division. Three hours a day, graduate level work. I love it. I'm the captain of the Tidewater Challenge Team - I love that, too. It's a great group of people. If you're even thinking about trying out, do it. But don't kid yourself. Many are called, but only four are chosen.

My hobbies, if you call them that, include cycling, music, clothes design and the Rocky Horror Picture Show. I know you've seen the jacket I made. It's my permanent signature. It's hideous and I love it.

That's about it. I hope I haven't been too straightforward or offended anyone or anything like that. It's just how I am.

In closing - to all my friends, I love you and best of luck. To everyone else, best of luck anyway. It's been fun.

"What a long, strange trip it's been." (The Grateful Dead)

Chen finds success the hard way

Margaret Chen came to America four years ago, virtually speaking no English and with a narrow view of American culture. She has spent 3 1/2 of those years learning about both at CHS - a colossal task.

However, Margaret refused to let the obstacles intimidate her. Plunging into the heart of the matter, she carefully listened and repeated the phrases she would hear floating within Churchland's halls during the day. Then that night, Margaret would pore over her Chinese-English dictionary, searching for the meanings.

When it comes to American humor though, Margaret found the dictionary to be of little help. "A friend would tell me something that was meant to be funny, and I would take it seriously, thinking about the answer I was supposed to give," Margaret remembers.

Although Margaret learned not to take jokes seriously, her grades were another matter. Her grade point averages in the ninth and tenth grades were understandably lower than her high academic standards. So Margaret set out to achieve and maintain a B average throughout her remaining high school years. She studies four hours a night and also juggles a part-time job at Revco's prescription counter to gain experience in her chosen career. She plans to be a pharmacist.

Even with her hectic schedule, Margaret still finds time for frequent entertainment. While in China, she thought that American students were as their Chinese counterparts - "not into partying." She now thoroughly enjoys this popular American pastime but doesn't get carrried away. The discipline that is characteristic of her heritage, that helps her to overcome staggering obstacles prevents her from doing so.

Margaret Chen definitely has the best of both worlds.

Dana Powell

Taking a well desrved break. Relaxing doesn't come easy to Margaret Chen after studying four hours a night and working a part-time job at Revco.

Must I? Yes, Van, you've got to sit still long enough, for photographer Jenny Forehand to take your picture before you head off to chorus practice.

Academics, Talent, & Spirit - That's Van Younkins

"You should be proud of what you do for you and your school," Van Younkins notes, and Van certainly lives up to his motto.

Van is a senior who stays involved in almost every area in the school. He has maintained a solid 3.0 average throughout high school, is a member of the National Honor Society, and was a marshal his junior year.

As far as talent, it pours from his ears and mouth. He was a member of the mixed chorus for a year and has been a member of the Villagers for three years running. He has also attended regional chorus for three years and participated in the Able and Ambitious program his freshmen year.

Van not only excels in academics and spirit, but also in spirit. He was a member of the Spirit Club and is currently a member of the Trivial Pursuit Club. His spirit has always been with the class of 1988. He was a member of the Junior Advisory Board and is currently a member of the Senior Advisory Board. He lent the class his help with the construction of their three first prize floats. And if you attended last year's prom, thank Van for the wonderful food. That was a task he took great care in completing.

Academics. Talent. Spirit. What could possibly be left? Well, he has been a member of the tennis team for the past two years and he enjoys many outside sports such as skiing, basketball, and swimming.

Being this involved must pay off. During his junior year, Van was chosen the second runner-up in the Mr. and Miss Churchland pageant and his senior class voted him most talented male.

His future plans include possible attending JMU and then pursuing a successful career in the field of business.

Why Us?

Who is considered normal? Do you have to wear unmatching clothes? Does your hair have to stick out as far as your shoulders? Do you have to have a certain average in your classes?

Certainly people wonder if they are normal. These days everyone is stereotyped. Does it really matter? Why do we worry so much about being normal?

Monica Perry and J. D. Underwood exemplify a normal student. For this reason, they were chosen to be on our title page.

Monica and J. D. are both honor students. What's ironic is the fact that they are in the same organizations. Both are on the yearbook staff, newspaper staff, and the senior advisory board. Monica is the assistant editor of the yearbook and editor of the newspaper. J. D. is a one of the yearbook photographers and co-sports editor of the yearbook.

Monica and J. D. both want a relatively "normal" life after graduation. They plan to attend college, graduate, get married, establish careers, and have kids.

Doesn't this seem to be normal?

"Hurry Up. It's Cold." Just like every "normal" person, J. D. Underwood and Monica Perry find the 45 degree temperature a little too cold for picture taking purposes.

Marshals - the Best of the Best

Pinned. Outgoing Marshal Jessica Canos pins Stefanie Lewis, one of the twenty new Marshals selected from the junior class.

What are the Marshals? Just another organization for the members of the junior class? Or is there more to it than that?

The Marshals really are more than just a group of juniors. It is a group of students that represents the best Churchland has to offer in academics and in leadership. They are the people that visitors see. Just go to a concert or play, and you're sure to see at least four marshals nearby. The Marshals make a great impression on visitors and, therefore, are carefully chosen.

First, they are nominated for consideration by teachers and present marshals and then voted on by the faculty. After the new Marshals are chosen, one is selected Chief Marshal - the person who best fulfills the school's image. Last year, this elite person was Belinda Rhoades, but unfortunately she had to move and was unable to attend Churchland this year. Completing her duties was Trey Hanbury. Both did a commendable job at this post.

The tradition was soon passed on to Amy Morgan. In chorus, soccer, football, and more, Amy is the epitome of Churchland excellence.

Churchland's Marshals are always around - dedicated, enthusiastic, and displaying the secrets of their success.

It's all in a day's work for Susan

Cheerleader. Soccer player. Marshal. Jr. Advisory Board member. SCA.

Susan Lee has a full day. She currently has a 4.2 cummulative grade point average, which ranks her in the top of her class. Her heavy classload includes Latin IV, trigonometry, Honors English 11, French II, history and chemistry.

Besides all of her activities, she always finds time for her friends. "I like being with my friends or doing something outdoors. I like anything that uses up a lot of energy," Susan added. She also plays the piano, having taken lessons for five years. She has played since she was three years old.

After graduation Susan wants to attend Harvard University. She plans to major in law, possibly becoming a corporate lawyer.

The 1987 Maid of Honor is... Whitney Walker and her escort Harry Edelstein wait the announcement of the winner of the 1987 Maid of Honor.

"Oh, My God!"

"Oh, my God! Oh, my God!" were the words of junior Whitney Walker after she was named the Maid of Honor during the homecoming ceremony.

"I just can't believe it," Whitney said. "I really can't believe that I was Maid of Honor!"

Whitney's work as a varsity cheerleader made her appearance before the homecoming crowd a little easier to handle. However, there were still some last minute jitters on that first Friday in October.

"Does my dress look right?"

"Will I be on time?"

"Will Harry be late?"

"What if I trip and fall?"

Whitney successfully conquered these fears with poise and grace to be named Maid of Honor.

The first time. Giving it her best the first time through is Macy Hale as she works through one of the verbal sections.

P(ain). S(anity). A(gony). T(error).

Here I sit on this dreary day of October 20th with a no. 2 pencil. My palms are sweaty. I am not alone. Every junior and some sophomores are taking this test today.

As I am ready to begin, my instructor goes over some things with us. She explains to us that the test not only tests our ability, but our aptitude for future learning through reasoning skills that are evaluated through the questions.

As the butterflies go away and the first question is out of the way, I begin to think of the SAT I am required to take later.

Another day of sweaty palms?

Taking a break. Jim Cales relieves the tension with laughter between breaks of the PSAT testing.

No time for play

Practice... study... more practice... more study... This is the only thing fifteen year old Jim Cales has time for lately.

After a long day at school, Jim heads off to football practice with his teammates. This junior varsity football kicker doesn't find it easy to maintain his good grades and be on the team.

"It's not very hard. I just don't have much time to myself," Jim said.

Although Jim is in accelerated classes, he still manages his position on the team. Throughout all the after school practices, games, and studying, Jim manages to modestly state, "Hard work is the key."

Watch that cone. Checking to see where the red cones are is Tony Mason as he practices his parallel parking skills during a hot July day.

Start Your Engines

And they're off. Tony Mason is in the lead, but here comes Coach William Strickland, and he wins it by a nose. No, we are not at the Indianapolis 500. It's just another summer day at drivers' education.

Over the summer many 15 year and 8 month old students came to drivers' education at Churchland to find Coach Strickland. Tension was heavy as one person would hit a cone and another would hit the curb. Coach Strickland, an understanding man, diligently taught the students, hoping they would remember his lessons.

So watch out. Here they come!

Taking a break. While her second period class completes a written exercise, Mrs. Sherri Bridgeman takes time out from her teaching and sponsoring duties, which include the SCA and the freshmen.

'91 Starts Early

"This year's freshmen class will be remembered if I have anything to say about it," Mrs. Sherri Bridgeman, co-sponsor of the class of 1991, noted.

Mrs. Bridgeman is very involved in her first year here. She is a resource teacher of government and English as well as co-sponsor of the SCA.

Mrs. Bridgeman and her co-sponsor, Dr. Margaret Morris, work to make the freshmen class noticed. Mrs. Bridgeman works with class president Tiffany Poole to get more people involved in the schools activities. With Mrs. Bridgeman behind them, the freshmen have already achieved success with a second place in homecoming float competition.

Yes, Mrs. Bridgeman stays busy making the freshmen a success.

Two more 9X classes added

Confused. Troubled. Overworked. These words might describe some freshmen in 9X English classes.

Are these freshmen students confused, troubled and overworked because they are put to a new challenge just about everyday? Or is it they are confused because they are freshmen and they really don't understand what is going on? Troubled because of due assignments they don't have? Or just simply overworked?

The large number of freshmen forced the English department to come up with two more 9X English classes. There are four 9X classes this year with Mr. O.L. Paige teaching three of the classes, and Mr. Marvin Fanny teaching the other one.

The 9X classes are for freshmen students who can accept more academic responsibility. Indeed, they should be able to keep up with the challenges given to them everyday.

Confused? Maybe. Troubled? Maybe. Overworked? NO.

Deli day. Roast beef and pastrami become a mainstay on Wednesdays, deli day, for people like Jeff Williams.

Three Lunches?

9:57. A good time for a Hardee's steak biscuit. Wrong.

It's time for first lunch. For the first time in nearly ten years, Churchland has had to resort to three lunches. Because of the huge student body of 1100, administrators felt a third lunch was necessary. The first lunch is made up primarily of freshmen, and the third lunch is designated for seniors.

The creation of three lunches also caused scheduling problems. Now the typical schedule includes third early and third late and fourth early and fourth late periods.

Well, maybe we'll have pancakes tomorrow for lunch?!

"Honestly, I'm Only 14!"

Smiling. Laughing. Having fun. These are just a few characteristics of Greg Canada.

When you meet Greg, he will greet you with a smile. It's not hard becoming friends with him; he has a warm sense of humor, likes people for what they are, not if they are popular, and loves to have fun with his friends.

Greg is also an athlete; Greg is a "jock," but it doesn't interfer with his schoolwork. Greg enjoys playing soccer and running cross country. He "wouldn't mind" a sports scholarship for college.

Greg enjoys his English class the most. He looks up to Mr. Paige. Greg notes that he has finally met a person who thinks as deeply as he does. Greg enjoys the warm and comfortable atmosphere here.

You might look at Greg and say, "You're a freshman?" Greg will respond shyly, "Yeah," and a smirk will appear on his face. Greg says his appearance makes people think he is much more mature than he really is. Greg screams, "Give me a break. I'm just fourteen, just a kid, but it does have its advantages. I can get into a R rated movie."

Three of the Best

Good things always change. Or do they?

Our administration has been working together now for ten years. Mr. Edgar Morgan, Mr. John Mounie, and Mrs. Norma Taliaferro have successfully kept the walls of Churchland High from falling down.

Many wonder how the administration has done such a good job while changes are constantly taking place in the school system. Through the near closure of Norcom, a change in superintendents, and many other School Board problems, our three prinicpals have managed to keep students happy.

Mr. Mounie thinks the happiness among the students is due to the kindness of Mr. Morgan. Mr. Mounie describes Mr. Morgan as being "exceptionally understanding, open-minded, and great to work with." While he feels he is lucky to work with Mr. Morgan, he thinks CHS is blessed to have him.

The difference between prinicpals at other other schools and Mr. Morgan is that he wants to help. He wants to hear both sides of the story before he judges anything. He doesn't just point the finger, saying, "You're wrong!" As Mr. Mounie points out, "He wants to offer the best to every student."

It's obvious to see that, together, Mr. Morgan, Mr. Mounie, and Mrs. T. have found the secret of success.

Listening attentively. With a sense of accomplishment, Mrs. Barbara King listens to a "how to" speech in her speech class.

The Legend Lives On

This warning has been passed down from student to student for the past nineteen years: "If Mrs. King is your teacher, you're going to write your hands off in her class!"

No matter what she teaches or sponsors — English 9-12, speech, composition, forensics, literary magazine, or Tidewater Challenge - her students get a workout when it comes to reading and writing. Sounds monotonous? Not in Mrs. King's class. What with performing the plays they read in class, writing their personal philosophy of life, and preparing speeches, such as the reknowned "How to shave speech," Mrs. King's students don't stand a chance of being bored; monotony is not her style.

But, oh boy, is she ever known for fussin'! Mrs. King has never denied that; in fact, most students and faculty suspect she's kind of proud of her reputation. "She yells a lot, but it's because she cares," one student observes. She pushes harder, fusses more, always demanding excellence from her students. Nothing makes Mrs. King prouder than to know her students possess the ability to think and write critically.

And she's been proud for twenty years now.

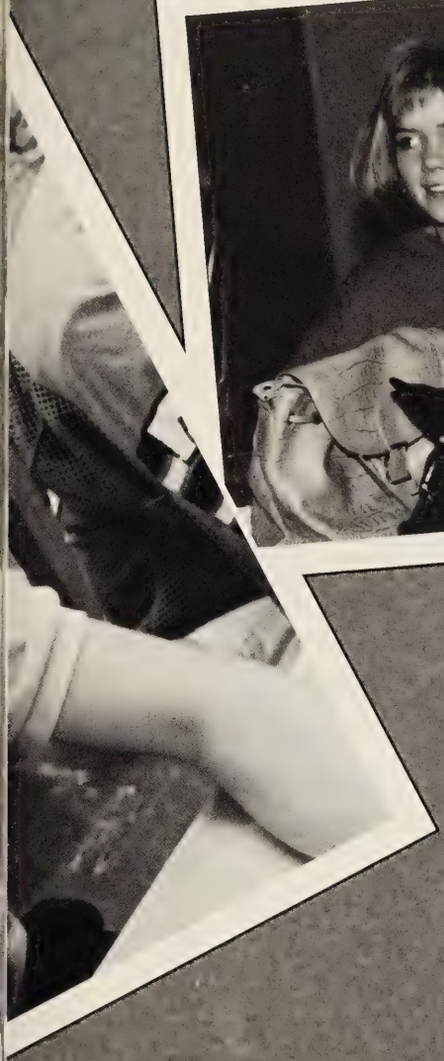
ETC.



What makes this yearbook go? Its sponsors and supporters. That's who. These are the people that really back the book with their ads and support.

These are the patrons and local businessmen that provide the goods and services so that we may have the best yearbook ever. The types of sponsors vary from small,one-man owned shops to large businesses.

Along with these gracious business firms, you have the patrons. A patron is a person who provides monetary support by having his name placed in the ads section.

With all these people and businesses, you have to have a list of them. That's where the index comes in. This index lists where all the people and businesses are located in the book.

Leigh Bender

Frustration. Senior Toni Franklin ponders another day of "hitting the books" and it doesn't look to promising. Cheer up, Toni.
"Hurry up, Mr. Morgan!" While waiting in homeroom for Mr. Morgan to announce the seniors' arrival at the pep rally, Kent Saunders smiles for a picture.
Breakfast. What's that? When there is no time at home for breakfast Amy Morris gets to school early for a quick meal.

As editor, I would like to thank the entire Trucker staff for their hard work and cooperation. A very special thanks to Mr. Marvin Fanny for all his guidance and support and friendship. To all the students and my fellow graduates, I leave the following poem by jonivan.

Although our lives may not always be calm and contented, remember to feel secure with what you are
...
feel stable with what you can be.
Remain satisfied that you are capable of changing your life if necessary satisfied that you can try and that you will succeed.

Luster keeps on smilin'

The sage advice to choose a profession you'll love was well taken by Mrs. Helen Luster. She has never held a job that wasn't math-related.

In high school, Mrs. Luster tutored math after school and during summers. As a math major in college, she tutored professionally in the Upward Bound federal program, and during her senior year she was promoted to one of its teaching positions. She's now been teaching in the CHS math department for eleven years.

"I've always enjoyed the creative thinking processes in math ... and I like being around young adults. I like to mold their minds!" Mrs. Luster explains.

To Mrs. Luster, molding minds entails daring. She dares her students to excel and to challenge themselves. She refuses to curve grades. And she is famous for saying, "If you pass, you pass; if you don't, I'm going to keep on smilin'!"

"I pluck everyone's nerves, don't I?" Mrs. Luster laughs.

Mrs. Luster recognizes successful students as those who put forth their best efforts. Drawing her energy from such students, she has no plans for retirement and almost seems offended at the notion.

"I will retire when I get bored and when I feel I can't reach the kids," she emphasizes.

In that case, Mrs. Helen Luster may be around for a long, long time.

Churchland welcomes Siri and Louise

As foreign exchange students Siri Falch from Norway and Louise Treacy from Australia find CHS different from their schools.

"In Norway," Siri notes, "you do not have to attend school after the ninth grade, and it is much harder."

The school week is the same as ours, but there are seven class periods with a different schedule everyday. Siri also finds the rules too strict at CHS and that there are not many activities for teens here.

Louise feels the schools in Australia are more difficult and more enjoyable as they offer a diffrent schedule for each day of the week.

"Everyone is friendly, but they don't show their curiosity. I am sure they have questions, but are timid about asking them," notes Louise.

Even though they have enjoyed the United States and Churchland, Louise and Siri feel there is no place like home.

Wermeister paints the town!

Wanted: Government teacher. Qualifications: Imagination, good sense of humor, must love community services. Found: Mrs. Phyllis Wermeister.

How does one make a tedious subject like government worthwhile? Teaching the foreign material in an understanding and descriptive manner. Extra credit reviews with candy as a prize. (The candy may sound childish but students do study and learn now.)

Another area which Mrs. Wermeister encourages her students to get involved in is community services. Each semester a student is responsible for completing one community service. The main event this year was the painting and beautification of old Portsmouth homes. Various Saturdays CHS government students painted a selected Portsmouth home. In return they received a grade.

There are other services which may be completed. Remember that snow storm? Do you know how many old people got their sidewalks shoveled? Lots.

Mrs. Wermeister has brought a new meaning to teaching government. She is a down-to-earth person who understands that eighteen year olds may not get the bureaucracy on the first time around. Her goal is to get students to understand the real world of government and politics. Her warm smile and personality make one feel right at home at CHS.

Welcome, Mrs. Phyllis Wermeister. Thanks.

Girls' soccer enters second year

Returning to the spring sports' scene this year is Coach Roe DeBrango and the girls' varsity soccer team. This year will make the second official year for girls' soccer.

All district players Allison Ayres, Jessica Canos, and Amy Morgan will return with other team members Alisa Wescott, Karen Moser, Lanie Samonte, Lisa Weaver, Debbie Harrison, Susan Lee, Susan Murray, Leslie Jessee, Jenny Forehand, Meimii Vaughan, and Katherine Rosin. Goalie Susan Crnadall will move to the field, and newcomer Debbie Canada will take her place at the goal.

With only one member of last year's team, Stephanie Mabry, moving on to college, the Lady Truckers should have a strong team to carry them high into the district standings.

We salute you, Sgt. Maj. Tate

When asked to write a paper on a modern day Beowulf, one senior, Martin McNair, noted that Sgt. Major Bill Tate fulfilled all of the requirements necessary for one to be called a modern day Beowulf — strength, courage and good leadership.

As a tribute to Sgt. Major Tate, Martin McNair wrote the following:

"My ROTC assistant Marine Corps instructor Sgt. Maj. Tate has excellent leadership qualities which he learned from over twenty years in the Marine Corps. He has integrity in his character and keeps himself organized. His character and actions have caused him to gain respect from his students. He helps develop a sense of responsibility in his students. Sgt. Maj. Tate teaches his students to bring out their leadership potential."

Sgt. Major Bill Tate, we salute you for your years of service to CHS and to the future of America upon your retirement.

Salute!

Au Revoir, Mr. Gatling

After twenty-eight years of teaching, Monsieur William Gatling has decided to say "au revoir" (goodbye).

Mr. Gatling wishes to pursue other interests upon his retirement, particularly church music. He not only sings in his church choir but also plays the organ.

After his retirement, his plans include travelling and furthering his interests in church music.

When asked what he would miss the most about Churchland, Mr. Gatling replied, "I'll miss being with so many young people."

Mr. Gatling has taught French here at Churchland High School since 1960.

Au revoir, Monsieur Gatling. We'll miss you.

We've Discovered the Secret of our Success!

We've discovered the secret of our success... The secret lies within ourselves. We control our destinies. We decide our futures. We search inward for the strength to go on.

Success is... being on the homecoming court. Leading the homecoming court parade are Beth Atkinson and Kent Saunders.
Success is ... GRADUATION. Seniors Mark Guyot and Kim Hall smile for that long awaited cap and gown picture.

Success is not measured by the colors you wear or your rank. It is measured by your character and your attitude.
